Carter also leading in indebtedness: $1.75 million

SEA ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, who apparently has an insurmountable lead in delegates for the Democratic presidential nomination, also leads all presidential candidates on campaign indebtedness — about $1.75 million.

Many of the former Georgia governor's top aides met near this coastal resort island, where Carter is vacationing, to prepare for a major strategy session with Carter today.

During meetings on Wednesday, his top staff members decided on a series of fundraising activities to collect about $1 million which campaign treasurer Robert Lipshutz said would put the Carter campaign in the black through the Democratic National Convention next month.

Carter's advisers have agreed to conduct 12 fundraisers to replenish his war chest but are divided over how to handle the vice presidential nomination, his press secretary says.

Carter had not previously said that the campaign was in debt for the $1.75 million. His statements this week and last were that the campaign was "several hundred thousand dollars in debt."

Lipshutz said the campaign owes about $1.75 million, and expects to receive about $1.1 million through a combination of federal campaign matching funds and reimbursement from news media and the Secret Service for their travel with the Carter campaign.

Lipshutz said that leaves the campaign with a net debt of about $600,000.

A fundraiser in Dallas earlier this week raised more than $200,000, Carter aides said.

Republican campaign officials said last week that President Ford's campaign had a surplus of more than $300,000, while GOP challenger Ronald Reagan's campaign was almost in the black after being more than $1 million in debt.

Meanwhile, Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said there was a fairly strong division of opinion among staff members on how to handle the selection of a vice presidential nominee after Carter wins the presidential nomination, which now appears certain.

"We want a thorough screening process but at the same time we want to preserve the privacy of people under consideration," Powell said in a briefing for newsmen after Wednesday's staff session.

"There is concern about just how much you have a right to ask people under consideration to do," he said.

President Ford has offered the use of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for background screenings of possible vicepresidential nominees. Powell said last week that the Carter staff was uncertain whether the offer should be accepted.

Powell indicated there were other considerations in the split among staff members over the vice-presidential nomination, saying, "There are more than two sides." He added that Carter would probably resolve the dispute, himself.

"It's the governor's final prerogative," powell said.

Carter is using most of this week to relax here on the Georgia coast after 18 months of campaigning. He bypassed Wednesday's staff meeting to go deep sea fishing for about 12 hours with his family.

He returned emptyhanded except for "one fairly small bonita." Carter said one "beautiful cobia" got away.

Major crime declines in Pomona

Down 5.5%, compared to 4% national rise

By JACK BURSON
PB Staff Writer

Major crime in Pomona dipped for the first three months of the year in contrast to statistics for the rest of the country, FBI figures revealed today.

While major crime rose four per cent during the first quarter of 1976 across the United States, statistics for Pomona showed a 5.5 per cent decrease from the same period of 1975.

Richard A. Slaght, acting police chief for the city, said homicide was down 81.8 per cent; rape was down five per cent; residential burglary was down 14.3; and armed robbery was up 23.2 per cent.

The drop in the homicides reflected a return to a more typical rate after a record number of 22 persons were slain in the city last year. To date, there have been three homicides. Last year at this time there had been 11.

But perhaps the figure which affects the average citizen most was the drop of 14.2 per cent in house burglaries.

"We're really happy about that figure," Slaght said, "and I attribute it to the burglary prevention program we have been providing citizens during the year. It has shown results."

The program provides a team of experienced burglary investigation officers which examines homes of Pomona residents and advises householders how they can make their homes more difficult for burglars to enter.

Early in the program, team members went from door to door in certain sections of the city. At present the team can be requested by calling the department and making an appointment, Slaght said.

Besides Pomona, 68 other law enforcement agencies reported decreases in major crime during the first quarter of the year, the FBI reported. The nationwide rise of four per cent compares with an increase of 18 per cent for the same period of 1975, the FBI reported.

"The continued rise in reported crime remains a serious problem for the criminal justice system and the nation," Atty. Edward H. Levi said. He added, however, that reported crime has been slowing progressively in recent months.

Terrified, but not panicking, residents of an adult care center in Roanoke, Va., are led from the burning building by a state security agent. Four died in the early morning blaze and at least 24 others were injured. Officials said 174 persons were in the home.

4 die, 24 hurt as blaze sweeps old folks' home

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Fire that may have been caused by smoking in bed sent smoke swirling through an old folks' home early today. Authorities said four aged patients died and at least 24 others were injured.

Frank Wallace, administrator of Shenandoah Homes, said 174 persons were in the home and 49 of them were in the second-floor infirmary where the blaze broke out about 2:15 a.m.

Firemen carried some trapped residents down fire truck ladders from windows of the six-story building, but most, with the help of nurses, were able to flee on foot.

Roanoke County fire coordinator Robert Monroe said careless smoking was believed to have caused the fire, which was not brought under control for about three hours.

A night nurse who discovered the fire, Mary Garland, said the fire was started by a patient "who had been smoking in bed."

Fire officials said the home's mattresses, made of foam rubber with cotton bottoms, were highly flammable.

The injured were taken to three Roanoke-area hospitals, where spokesmen said most suffered from smoke inhalation, "one or two" from shock, and a few had had apparent heart attacks. It was not immediately known whether smoke inhalation had caused the four deaths.

The Roanoke Red Cross chapter provided shelter for more than 80 of the home's residents.

The dead and injured were not immediately identified, nor was there an immediate estimate of damage to the building.

Monroe said the blaze originated in a second-floor room that was occupied by two persons, one about 60 years old, the other about 80.

Smoke from the fire tripped an automatic alarm and provided the first sign of danger.

West L.A. blaze leaves four dead, 25 injured

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dozens of people streamed into the street, some with their hair and clothes on fire, after thousands of gallons of gasoline ignited, turning a busy business district into an inferno.

Four persons died in the holocaust Wednesday in West Los Angeles. Twenty-five others were injured and at least seven were hospitalized with critical injuries.

Two of the victims died during the night at County-USC Medical Center.

Clara Drowne, 53, of Phoenix, Ariz., died shortly before midnight of burns suffered in the explosion.

Her sister, Mae Woods, 71, of Los Angeles, died at 3:40 a.m. of her injuries.

The husbands of the two sisters, Ernest Drowne and Earl Woods, were among the injured.

Later, in the 9500 block of Venice Boulevard of West Los Angeles, the gasoline explosion sent balls of flame rolling down busy Venice Boulevard, gutting cars along the way and demolishing a row of businesses. Melting tar flew threw the air and telephone and power lines wilted and fell to the ground.

Investigators said the gasoline exploded when street construction crews pierced a Standard Oil Co. pipeline leading from a refinery to a distribution terminal.

Bill Wofford, a spokesman for the Los Angeles Fire Department, said he understood a construction map for the street project showed there was a pipeline beneath the area.

"There was no reason for them not to know there was a pipeline there," Wofford said.

Fire investigators were uncertain what made the rushing low-lead gasoline ignite but said the blast occurred as the fuel vaporized.

"It shook the whole building," said Joe Mosseri, 51, who lives across from many of the gutted businesses. "Then I looked out the window. The flames were shooting 300 feet in the air."

The county coroner's office identified one of the dead as Cora Lindoff, 92, of Los Angeles, who suffered a heart attack as she stood in her front yard at the time of the blaze. Her home was on a street that intersected with Venice Boulevard.

Six cars that lined the busy street were turned into charred frames. The body of one person was found charred beyond recognition

Valley heat spell broken

Cool marine air arrived here Wednesday afternoon, a day earlier than expected, and broke the valley's heat spell after three days of mid-90 temperatures.

The weatherman now predicts pleasant though somewhat smoggy weather for the rest of the week, with temperatures ranging in the mid-80s in the afternoons and in the low-50s during the night.

The mercury got up to a high of 85 Wednesday, and it is expected to reach 83 today. Humidity will be relatively high because of the moist air.

Officer receives 5-day suspension

RIVERSIDE (AP) — A five-day suspension has been imposed on a Highway Patrol officer following a patrol inquiry into a stolen property ring that had been operating in Riverside.

A CHP spokesman announced Wednesday the suspension was imposed on David R. Chavez for failing to report a fellow CHP officer who asked him to particpate in stealing a rental trailer.

Berserk man opens fire, wounds 4

CHICAGO (AP) — A gunman opened fire on a crowded commuter train today, and authorities said four persons were wounded.

Police said the assailant escaped down one staircase as officers ran up another set of stairs.

Two of the wounded, a man and wife, were taken to Michael Reese Medical Center, where they were described as in serious condition.

A Chicago Transit Authority spokesman said the woman, Rose Turner, 21, was shot in the head. Her husband, Charles, 36, was wounded in the chest, the spokesman said.

A hospital attendant said they were alerted to receive two more patients.

Ford proposal cites flaw in S.S. benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford sent Congress a proposal today to prevent distorted cost-of-living payments by Social Security in unusually high periods of inflation.

Ford said Congress should move immediately to correct what he termed "a serious flaw" in the cost-of-living guarantees.

He also urged Congress to pass his proposed three-tenths of a per cent increase in payroll contributions by both employes and employers. This would "stop the drain on the trust funds — which are now expected to pay out about $4 billion more in benefits each year than they take in," Ford said.

He said this payroll tax increase "would cost no employe more than $1 per week in additional contributions."

Father of victim booked

Infant girl killed, nine hurt in 3-car collision

A 4-month-old girl was killed and nine people injured in a three-car collision Wednesday in the Mission Boulevard-Archibald Avenue intersection in east Ontario.

Ontario police arrested the father of the dead girl on charges of suspicion of vehicle manslaughter and released him to the custody of officials at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

He is Manuel Rocha Godinho, 28, 1420 S. Monterey Ave., Ontario. Hospital officials report this morning that he is in fair condition in the intensive care unit.

Four-month-old Leidia Godinho was pronounced dead on arrival at Ontario Community Hospital following the 3:20 p.m. pileup.

Investigating officers said Godinho, who was northbound on Archibald Avenue in a 1973 passenger car, apparently ran a red light and his car struck one vehicle head-on and careened into a pickup truck carrying nine people. There were three adults and four children in the Godinho vehicle.

Five other passengers in Godinhos' car, including his wife, were taken to hospitals.

The driver of the second car, Charles Richard Blakely, 1006 Tudor St., Montclair, who was eastbound on Mission Boulevard, was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital and was reported in good condition.

Rudolfo Ambriz Carranza, 25, 603 W. Belmont Ave., Ontario, driver of the pickup truck which was westbound on Mission Boulevard, was treated and released by San Antonio Community Hospital.

His passenger, Guadalupe Esquivel, 64, 521 S. Sultana Ave., Ontario, also was treated and released by that hospital.

Two women riding in the Godinho car were admitted to the San Antonio Community Hospital and today both are reported in fair condition.

They are Manuela Godhino, 22, wife of the driver and mother of the fatally injured child, and Gouar Costa, 28, 14521 Walters St., Corona.

Passengers in the Bodinho car taken to Ontario Community Hospital were Edwardo Costa, 5, Manuel Costa, 3, and Lilliana Costa, 1, all of 14521 Walters St., Corona.

The boys were admitted and today are reported in good condition. The little girl was admitted, reported in good condition and will be released today, a hospital spokesman said.

Brown stays in race, plans new campaign trip, TV talk

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he's not going to quit as the only active candidate besides Jimmy Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination.

To underscore that point, the 38-year-old Brown announced Wednesday he has bought a half-hour of national television time "to speak to the American people on critical issues facing the country."

The half-hour of National Broadcasting Co. time on Friday night, June 25, cost the Brown campaign $80,186.

And Brown, who recently qualified for $500,000 in federal campaign funds, also scheduled trips to Texas and Washington, D. C., today and Friday.

In Houston he was to attend a meeting of the Southwest State legislators and a dinner for Robert Strauss, national Democratic party chairman.

He planned to be at the National Press Club in Washington Friday afternoon.

"I am a candidate, and I'm going to continue my efforts as I have in the past," Brown told reporters when he returned to the state capital late Tuesday, "and I'm going to do so until I feel it appropriate not to do so."

He seemed annoyed by repeated questions asking why he won't concede to former Georgia Gov. Carter.

Yet he admitted his chances of beating Carter have diminished.

"I've been known as a candidate of lowered expectations, and mine have certainly been lowered in recent days," Brown said. He said he is realistic and the delegate strength of Carter is "very impressive."

Brown's California campaign director, Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, defends Brown for staying in the race.

Speaking to reporters Wednesday, the San Francisco Democrat rejected a suggestion that Brown was hurting his future and embarrassing himself by refusing to concede.

"I don't think there's any question he has strengthened himself," said McCarthy.

Asked about delegates freed by other candidates, McCarthy said, "A number of those delegates have phoned either Gov. Brown or someone in his campaign indicating they are not going to go for Carter."

Supervisors expected to okay county mayor proposal today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County voters will decide in November if they want an elected county mayor to take over the executive function of the county's Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors Kenneth Hahn and Ed Edelman were to ask the board today to put the proposition before the voters. Chairman Baxter Ward said earlier he would provide the third vote necessary to put the matter on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Supervisor James Hayes has indicated he will oppose the proposal while supervisor Pete Schabarum has indicated support.

The proposal would create a county government similar to the present state and federal governments. Legislative and executive powers would be separated, providing a system of checks and balances. The present county board set-up gives the five members full legislative and executive powers while the zoning appeals board functions as a quasi-judicial unit.

The proposal, designated Proposition A, provides for the countywide election of a mayor in November 1978 for a four-year term. On taking office, the mayor would assume the executive powers of the present board along with the personnel now assigned to the office of chief administrative officer.

The board is in disagreement over exact wording of the proposition.

L.A. attorney wants jail stay for all drunk drivers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Beginning July 1 the City of Los Angeles will seek 48-hour jail sentences for all persons convicted of drunken driving for the first time.

In a speech to the Lawyers Club of Los Angeles Wednesday, City Atty. Burt Pines said fines, probation and suspended sentences have failed to curb the problem of drunk driving and that the city feels a crackdown is necessary.

The normal practice of judges is to fine the drunk driver on the first conviction and suspend any jail sentence. Judges seldom send drunk drivers to jail until the second conviction.

Pines said about 10 persons are killed or injured each day in Los Angeles as a result of motorists who drink and drive.

The city official agreed with the lawyers that such a policy would add to court congestion because persons facing jail sentences would be more inclined to seek full trials rather than plead guilty.

Pines said, however, that if additional judges are needed to handle the problem, the courts should make that accomodation to serve the public.

He added that stiffer sentences could result in the saving of many lives and said that the legislature should make a jail sentence mandatory for all first-time offenders.

Senate approves sale of governor's mansion

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Senate has approved a bill that would clear the way for the sale of the state's $1.3 million governor's mansion.

The upper house approved a bill Wednesday by Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, that would give the Department of General Services the right to sell the residence. A 22-14 vote sent the bill to the Assembly.

The action marked the latest chapter in the stormy history of the 12,000-square-foot, Spanish-style home, a pet project of former Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. scorned the house as an unneeded "Taj Mahal" during his 1974 election campaign and refused to move in when the residence was completed last summer.

During Wednesday's debate, Alquist called the mansion a "resort" and a "monument to the colossal ego of the previous governor."

He promised to amend the bill to earmark funds from the sale of the house for a new mansion near the Capitol that he said would be less costly to maintain and protect.

He said he hoped a new governor's house would be a more modest "official-type residence" that would give legislators and citizens greater access to the governor.

The mansion sits on an 11-acre site overlooking the American River 14 miles east of downtown Sacramento in suburban Carmichael.

The state's old governor's residence, a downtown Victorian mansion, was last used in 1967. Reagan lived there for a few months but moved into a private home after calling the old mansion a firetrap.

The house is now a state historical site.

Brown, a bachelor, lives in a $250-a-month apartment across the street from the Capitol. He pays the rent out of his $49,100-a-year salary.

Current law requires that the mansion be used only as a governor's residence. The Alquist bill originally would have allowed one of the state's other constitutional officers to move into the house if a governor decided to live somewhere else.

Right-to-death bill amended

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A "right-to-death" bill up for a vote of the state Assembly today has been amended it to satisfy the objections of pro-life groups.

The author, Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, said Wednesday that one amendment would make the authorization to end life, the so-called "living will," void if it came from a pregnant woman.

Another would allow a doctor to disregard a living will by a person who wasn't terminally ill at the time.

Keene said the major opponent to the bill, the Californi Pro-Life Council, promised to withdraw its opposition if the amendments were made.

Generally, the bill would allow a doctor to disconnect lifesupport equipment from a dying patient who had said in advance that he didn't want life prolonged extraordinarily.

NURSES INDICTED

Coworkers say 2 indicted nurses being victimized

DETROIT (AP) — "It doesn't make sense. They've got too much to lose," said a fellow nurse of Filipina Narciso and Lenora Perez, who face charges of murdering five patients and poisoning 10 others at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich.

The indictment returned Wednesday by a federal grand jury in Detroit also charged them with conspiracy to commit first-degree murder.

The FBI said Miss Narciso, 30, of Ypsilanti, Mich., would be arraigned today in Detroit and Mrs. Perez, 31, of Evanston, Ill., in Chicago.

Miss Narciso still works at the Ann Arbor hospital and Mrs. Perez at a Veterans Administration Hospital in Chicago, where she transferred last fall. Both have been placed in clerical jobs.

At a news conference Wednesday, Jay E. Bailey, acting special agent for the FBI in Detroit, declined to discuss a possible motive for the poisonings.

Eleven patients died at the hospital last year from breathing failures. Investigators linked the deaths to the drug Pavulon, or pancuronium bromide, a curare-like, muscle-paralyzing drug which renders patients incapable of breathing without mechanical aid.

While official suspicion turned toward the two registered nurses almost as soon as the FBI started investigating the deaths at the Ann Arbor hospital, their friends and hospital coworkers call Miss Narciso and Mrs. Perez dedicated medical professionals and say they have been victimized by authorities.

Both accused nurses were on duty when the eight cases suddenly overwhelmed the intensive care unit of the hospital. And both worked so long and hard they collapsed and fainted, said another nurse on duty then.

The two women are Philippine citizens in the United States as resident aliens.

Envoy murders seen as move to get U.S. to act

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials believe a Moslem fringe group murdered Ambassador Francis E. Meloy Jr. and another American diplomat in Beirut to provoke U.S. intervention in the Lebanese civil war.

American sources commented on the situation prior to an announcement in Beirut that a number of persons had been arrested in connection with Wednesday's slayings of Meloy, economic counselor Robert O. Waring and their Lebanese driver, Zohair Moghrabi.

According to Beirut police sources, Al Fatah Palestinian guerrillas arrested five members of the Lebanese Socialist Revolutionary Organization, an urban guerrilla group.

A statement issued by the Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies said that "investigation of those responsible for the crime is under way."

The statement did not identify the suspects, reported their number or disclose their nationalities, but the implication was that all were Arabs. It said they would be handed over to the proposed pan-Arab peacekeeping force when it arrives in Beirut.

President Ford said Wednesday that U.S. policy in the middle east must remain unchanged." He said "all appropriate resources of the United States" will be used to find the killers.

The U.S. officials say the killers probably hoped to spark a violent American reaction that would then result in the splintered Moslem and Lebanese leftists solidifying against "imperialist interference."

Meloy, 59, Robert Waring, 58, and Zoheir Maghrabi were shot Wednesday while driving through the no-man's land between the Moslem and Christian sectors of Beirut.

Meloy and Waring were captured and killed while on their way from the Embassy in the Moslem sector of Beirut to meet President-elect Elias Sarkis in the Christian part of the city.

A security car accompanied them through the Moslem sector but turned back when they headed across the no-man's land, State Department spokesman Robert Funseth told reporters in Washington.

The first word of the tragedy came when an unidentified man called the Lebanese chauffeur's wife and told her the three men had been taken captive.

Mrs. Moghrabi called the Embassy, which checked with Sarkis' headquarters and found Meloy had not kept the appointment.

Nine hours after their disappearance, the bodies of the three men were found by units of Arafat's Palestine Liberation Army on a beach at Ralet Al Baid, half a mile from the Embassy building.

The bodies were wrapped in gray wool blankets, tied at both ends with ropes, the witness reported.

Spotlight on area crime

1 stabbed, another hurt in gang fight

A young man was reported in good condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was being treated for stab wounds suffered in a melee at First and Reservoir streets in POMONA Tuesday night.

The victim, Rolando Daile Requena, 20, of Pomona, was stabbed twice in the upper chest during the battle in which approximately 10 men used tire irons, rocks and sticks on each other, police reported.

Another victim of the incident, Carlos Albert Sueck, 22, of Ontario, had his jaw broken in three places and was taken to County-USC Medical Center for treatment.

Police arrested five of the combatants, but complaints against them were refused Wednesday afternoon by the District Attorney's Office and they were released.

Police said the trouble began with an argument between the two factions, one from Ontario-Upland and the other Pomona. They reported the groups pursued one another around the city, ramming each other's car until they stopped and the gang fight took place.

Faces shooting charge

A young Pomona man remained in jail today while police consulted with the District Attorney's Office to determine if a complaint should be issued against him in connection with a shooting incident in Pomona.

The suspect, Christopher Everette Tyler, 19, of 750 W. San Jose Ave., Claremont, was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder, carrying a concealed weapon and burglary Tuesday night after Myron Ray Hester, 26, Ronald Wayne Johnson, 24, and Diana Elizabeth Johnson, 26, told police he fired shots at them outside Hestor's home at 1933 San Simeon St.

The incident occurred after Hester accused Tyler of burglarizing his home earlier, police reported. They said they took a .25-caliber automatic pistol from Tyler when he was arrested.

S. Africa rioting in 2nd day

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rioting raged into a second day today in Africa's largest ghetto, the black township of Soweto.

More deaths today raised the reported total to 35 dead, all but two of them black, as students stoned cars, started fires and battled police. It was the worst racial violence in South Africa since police killed 69 blacks in the Sharpeville massacre in 1960.

At least 224 persons — five of them white — were reported injured and 126 were arrested.

Air force helicopters bombarded roving mobs of black rioters with tear gas. More than 1,000 black and white policemen, some armed with automatic rifles and machine guns, toured the area in armored cars.

Legislators, churchmen, teachers and newspapers opposed to South Africa's racial policies reacted with horror to the rioting and deaths. It was the worst racial confrontation in this white-ruled nation since police killed 69 blacks in the Sharpeville massacre in 1960.

In Johannesburg itself, club-wielding whites broke up a march by about 1,000 blacks and whites protesting police actions in Soweto.

The Soweto rioting broke out Wednesday when police tried to stop a demonstration by about 10,000 students protesting mandatory courses in Afrikaans, the Dutch-based language of the Boers, the dominant white faction.

The language is a symbol to the students of South Africa's apartheid policy of racial segregation and repression. The students want to be educated in English.

When tear gas failed to stop the youths pelting police with rocks, the police yesterday began shooting into the crowd. "It's no good firing over their heads," a senior police officer told reporters.

Police used tear gas to hold off a rock-throwing crowd that tried to storm the huge Baraganwath Hospital.

Minister of Police James T. Kruger said the violence covered about 21 square miles and at least 21 buildings had been gutted by fire. He said 11 of the wounded were policemen.

Kruger said he believed police used as little force as was necessary to contain the violence.

Police Gen. W.H. Kotze confirmed the casualty count. Police had withheld casualty figures after reporting Wednesday that six persons had been killed, four of them white. Officials said the erroneous reports of four white deaths was caused by double counting by police and ambulance officials.

A white welfare officer was killed when rioters attacked a government building. Two officials of a government board, one white and one black, were dragged from their cars and beaten to death. Other whites driving through the township were stopped and beaten.

All white officials were ordered out of the area. White members of the staff at the Baragwanath Hospital, the largest in southern Africa, were withdrawn.

The police put guards on trains and buses carrying workers from Soweto into Johannesburg after nine buses were burned and 50 others damaged.

New scandal figure

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Louisiana congressman was apprehended by vice squad agents who said he tried to solicit a woman police decoy for sex early this year, it was reported today. The report said federal officials suppressed records of the incident.

However, another report apparently referring to the same incident, said no charge was made because members of Congress are provided by the Constitution with immunity from arrest for misdemeanors while Congress is in session except for breaches of the peace.

The New York Post said it learned from unnamed sources that the cover-up of the incident involving Rep. Joe D. Waggonner, D-La., reached to the top levels of the Washington, D.C., police department and into the U.S. attorney's office.

Rick and Sue Erdmann and their daughter, Chris, in front of their Neenah, Wisconsin, home. The one-story home has about 800 square feet of floor space. All rooms open directly off the living room — the kitchen on one side, the two bedrooms on the other.

"Thanks to GE's Home Sentry® Smoke Alarm, we were able to save our home and our lives."

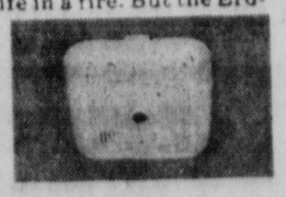

On the night of December 23, 1975, while the Erdmann family was asleep, a smoky fire started in their kitchen. With the windows closed and the inside doors open, the Erdmanns could have been overcome by smoke. The GE Home Sentry Smoke Alarm in their bedroom sounded an alarm before they succumbed to smoke and in time for them to extinguish the fire.

The lives of many of the 6,000 men, women and children who died in home fires last year might have been saved if, like the Erdmanns, they had been warned in time.

The GE Home Sentry Smoke Alarm is an early-warning ionization device that "sniffs" the air for the presence of smoke and sounds an alarm as soon as smoke reaches it.

Rick Erdmann chose the battery-operated GE Home Sentry because it can sound an alarm even if household power fails. And it's the only battery-operated smoke alarm with a 3-point checking system so you can assure yourself that the alarm is in working order. Depending on your home, you may need more than one unit.

Of course, no one can guarantee against injury or loss of life in a fire. But the Erdmanns are convinced that the GE Home Sentry Smoke Alarm helped them save their home and their lives.

Ford acts to insure makers of flu vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford adminstration has sent to Congress draft legislation which would indemnify swine influenza vaccine manufacturers for human injuries beyond their control.

The bill was submitted Wednesday in response to announcements by two vaccine manufacturers that they have no liability insurance covering the swine flu vaccine, and by a third that it was losing its insurance coverage July 1.

Four U.S. firms are licensed and have the capacity to produce enough vaccine to protect most Americans this year against a possibee reccurrence of a flu strain believed to be similar to the one that killed 20 million persons worldwide in 1918-19.

"Sufficient vaccine will be available only if all four of these manufacturers agree to produce vaccine," Secretary David Mathews of Health, Education and Welfare said in a letter accompanying the draft measure.

'76 Audis for $1000 less than Volvos and BMWs (even Saabs and Peugeots, for that matter).

No tricks. No word games. You can actually get our least expensive Audi for about $1000 less than the least expensive Volvo, BMW, Saab or Peugeot.

And not only will you be spending less, but you'll be getting more.

More miles per gallon than any of them. 36 on the highway and 24 in the city for our standard shift model, based on the latest EPA estimates. (Mileage can vary, of course, depending on the car's condition, optional equipment, as well as the way you drive.)

You'll also be getting advanced engineering features, like fuel injection, front-wheel drive, rack-and-pinion steering, dual diagonal brakes and torsion crank rear axle.

Better hurry, though. When you offer so much car for so little money, they don't stay around so long.

Richardson bill identifying young suspects passes

The state Senate has approved SEN. H.L. RICHARDSON'S bill that would permit news media access to the names and records of juvenile offenders.

The measure next goes to the Assembly for consideration.

Originally, the bill would have made the information available upon arrest but it was amended by Richardson to make the names and records of offenders available to the news media after a decision had been made to file a petition.

The equivalent of filing a petition in adult court would be the determination that enough evidence existed to hold a suspect for trial, said Richardson, R-19th Dist.

The senator reported he introduced the bill because of a 30 per cent increase of juvenile arrests for homicide in California during 1974 over the previous year.

"Yet it is likely that in most of these cases their names never were made public. I don't think the secrecy under which the juvenile justice system presently operates is working in the best interests of either the juvenile offenders themselves or the overwhelming majority of the people," he said.

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., has cosponsored a bill in Congress to authorize the establishment of sentencing guidelines for use in federal courts.

"Sentencing guidelines are overdue in judicial reform. They will help bring trials to faster conclusions and will impose uniformity of sentencing so as to bring back the deterrent factor for persons convicted of crimes," he said.

Lloyd joined Rep. Peter Rodino, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, in sponsoring the legislation.

"Under the existing laws, two criminals convicted of the same crime in the same jurisdiction and with similar backgrounds can receive widely varying sentences.

"This haphazard administration of justice weakens the judicial system," said Lloyd.

Should the bill be enacted, the open-ended sentences would be eliminated in federal courts and the judges would have to fix a definite term of imprisonment. The bill would create guidelines by which judges can fix prison terms for convicted criminals, he explained.

The Assembly has approved ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE'S proposed legislation that gives air pollution control districts greater review powers over potential polluters.

The measure would authorize such districts to require the annual renewal of permits issued to people for activities which could cause the emission of air contaminants.

The bill also includes clarifications regarding the authority of local pollution control hearing boards.

"Air pollution control boards may now issue permits for people who are working with machinery or equipment that could create air pollution. My bill would allow the boards to require renewal procedures so that permits can be judged on a year-to-year basis," McVittie, D-65th Dist., said.

The measure would also prohibit local hearing boards from granting rule variances where the district board has established a permit system. It further makes board hearing decisions effective upon filing rather than 30 days later.

Reward campaign

The La Puente Valley Kiwanis Club has launched a $50 reward campaign in an effort to identify, arrest, and convict persons responsible for defacing property with graffiti.

The Kiwanis effort is part of a total community anti-graffiti campaign that began last fall through the joint cooperation of the La Puente Chamber of Commerce, the City of La Puente, the Hacienda La Puente Unified School District and other community organizations.

During that time both the city and the school district have relentlessly attacked the problem by sandblasting or repainting over graffiti as soon as it appears on city or school property.

The Chamber of Commerce, supported by service clubs and interested individuals, has contacted local businessmen to gain their cooperation in obliterating the blight of graffiti from their property. Private residents have also been encouraged to join the effort.

"We realize graffiti is only a symptom of a problem that goes much deeper," says Tom Moreland, Kiwanis member and chairman of the community based anti-graffiti committee, "and we'd like to be able to solve all the problems connected with this activity, but I don't think that's going to happen easily.

"In the meantime, we hope we can at least make our community a cleaner and more attractive place to live and work. We hope the Kiwanis reward campaign will help the Sheriff's Department get the evidence needed to arrest and convict the handful of people who are responsible for most of the graffiti in this area."

Posters have been distributed to businesses, schools, city and community buildings in the area and Foster-Kleiser, an outdoor advertising company, is planning to donate two billboards about the reward program in the area.

Since the reward campaign began, several people have called to get more information or commend the Kiwanis Club for its efforts, reports Sgt. Don Sacks of the Industry sheriff's Station.

Residents with information that may lead to the arrest and conviction of anyone applying graffiti to public or private property should call 213 330-3322.

In love, but won't marry

LONDON (AP) — Rod Stewart, the rock superstar, says it is unlikely he will marry his Swedish girl friend, actress Britt Eklund, with whom he has been living for the past two years in Los Angeles.

Stewart, who threw a lavish London party Tuesday night for 500 guests, told John Blake of the London Evening News:

"I do not think Britt and I will ever marry. I could be proved wrong this time next year, but I feel I have not found the woman I want to marry yet. Britt and I are very much in love, but ... I am still a little rampant. I have still got an eye for the odd leg and bosom."

Disabled going to camp

Handicapped children from the valley will depart Monday for camps operated by the Crippled Children's Society.

Two-week sessions are offered free to the children and young adults at Camp Paivika in the San Bernardino Mountains near Crestline or at Camp Joan Mier, located near the ocean above Malibu.

Attending Joan Mier during the first session will be Glen Tapia, Claremont; Daria Bagger and Laura Pach, Glendora; Douglas Huff, La Verne; and Sylvia Morales, Pomona.

Camping at Paivika will be Gina Mikel, Glendora; Patricia Kennedy, Paul Losier and Terry McGill, La Verne; and Joe Agee, Pomona.

The camping schedule is kept as close as possible to a normal activity program. Planned are swimming, horseback riding, hiking, arts and crafts, nature study and sports.

School management staff in Pomona given 2-year pact

Management employes in the Pomona Unified School District have been awarded pay and fringe benefit increases covering a two-year period.

These employes are ineligible to join exclusive bargaining units under California's new collective bargaining law. There are approximately 230 people in this group, 110 certified, 60 classified and 60 confidential employes.

The school board Tuesday awarded them an eight per cent pay increase in 1976-77, with health and welfare benefits increased to $1,200 per employe (up from $900) and a six per cent pay increase in 1977-78 with health and welfare benefits increased to $1,500 per employe.

Chapter 14 of the California School Employes Association (CSEA) in the district has been recognized as exclusive bargaining unit for classified or non-teaching employes. Chapter President Jack Jones said the group's initial proposal to the district was for an 8.5 per cent pay increase and a $300 per employe increase in benefits on a one-year contract.

A district counter proposal of a two-year agreement with an eight per cent pay hike in 1976-77 and a six per cent increase in 1977-78 and increases to $1,200 and $1,500 in fringe benefits over the two-year period will be taken to CSEA members Thursday.

Acting Schools Supt. Sidney G. Moses said he anticipates a settlement with CSEA at the next regular board meeting. If that takes place, he said, Pomona would be the first public school district in California to sign with CSEA.

Associated Pomona Teachers (APT), an affiliate of the California Teachers Association and the National Education Association, has been recognized as exclusive bargaining agent for district teachers.

Its initial proposal for 1½ times the cost of living increase between April 1975 and April 1976, or about 12½ per cent has been received by the district.

Negotiations between APT and the board's representatives will resume July 6, Moses said.

If the district could negotiate two-year contracts with both CSEA and APT it would have "labor peace" which would "make a big difference" in how top administrators are permitted to spend their time, Moses said.

He estimated that $50,000 of administrator's time is spent in the negotiations processes each year a new agreement has to be reached.

He said that as the board's representative in negotiating sessions with APT, he had spent half his time the past several months on this assignment.

Poly session for small businesses

The pros and cons of starting a small business will be discussed in a one-day seminar June 26 at Kellogg West on the Cal Poly campus in Pomona, announced Reed M. Powell, dean of the university's school of business administration.

The seminar is being coordinated with U.S. Small Business Administration. It will include speakers on such topics as financing, legal considerations, accounting and record keeping, taxes, insurance and site location.

"A large percentage of small business failures can be attributed to lack of management experience and know-how with the owner failing to take into consideration one or more basic factors," said Powell.

The workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Cost is $12.50, which includes lunch. Attendance is limited by the size of the auditorium.

For registration or information, persons may call 598-4214.

Ontario community groups requesting $131,359 in aid

The Ontario City Council has been asked for $131,359 in city and general revenue sharing funds to support various community organizations.

Council members accepted the requests Tuesday night but took no formal action. The council will consider these when formally adopting a new city budget June 25 at noon in the council chambers.

The requests ranged from the West End Council for Human Services, Inc., seeking $75,604 in federal revenue sharing funds, to the Ontario Chamber of Commerce asking $32,500 in city funds.

But Jay Holmes, the Chamber of Commerce incoming president, said his organization may need only half of the $32,500 if the council approves an ordinance allowing assessments to be made on city license fees.

"We hope to sit down with the city staff and council members and go over the program that would become effective Jan.1, 1977," he added.

Holmes said the chamber will raise another $47,500 for its operation.

The West End Council for Human Services requested revenue sharing funds to help support the programs of its affiliates, Straight Ahead and Aztlan Aftercare, plus the council. All serve the Ontario area in drug abuse services, said Joe Espinoza, executive director.

Other requests for city funds included:

—Ontario Mounted Police, $500; Mountettes, $200; Ontario Police Reserves, $500; West End Opera Association, $2,000; Valley Oratorio Society, $500; Chaffey Communities Cultural Center, $1,000; and West End Symphony Orchestra Association, $2,000.

Financial assistance from federal revenue sharing funds sought were:

— Alcohol Education Program, $6,000; West End Boys' Clubs; $3,500; Suicide and Crisis Intervention Service, $1,500; and Reach Out West End, $3,000.

Claremont tract map OK'd

The Claremont Planning Commission has recommended that the City Council approve a tentative map for a tract of 34 lots on 9.8 acres between Base Line Road and the Foothill Freeway right-of-way.

But the commission continued the matter of a conditional use permit on a residential unit development of the tract Tuesday until developer Ed Bell submits a general development plan depicting a site plan for the houses, elevation and materials.

In other matters the commission took the following actions:

—Reviewed a conditional use permit for expansion of the Danson Restaurant's outdoor eating area at 109 Yale Ave. into a former service station area and approved it.

— Approved for a second year a conditional use permit to allow a halfway house for adult women at 1265-1269 N. Harvard Ave.

The commission noted that the original applicants, the Rev. and Mrs. Peter Van Katwyk, are leaving Claremont in August, and that the board of directors of Crossroads, Inc. currently is reviewing applicants from the School of Theology.

— Continued the matter of a conditional use permit to allow Pomona College to run boarding houses at 105, 119, and 211 N. College Ave. The commission is concerned that the Sumner House of historical significance at 105 N. College Ave. not be altered inside or out.

— Continued discussion of a Claremont Colleges parking plan until the city staff has been able to prepare a full report.

— Heard that City Atty. William Bergman has taken under advisement an appeal by Rosa Torrez, 148 Cornell Ave., to a denial of a home occupation permit.

Pedestrian tunnel will close

The state this summer will close a pedestrian tunnel which goes under the San Bernardino Freeway at Mountain Avenue between Claremont and Pomona.

Claremont Public Works Director Paul Cook said that the Department of Transportation will seal each end of the 300-foot-long tunnel with a cinder-block wall. Later, the entire tunnel will be filled with sand, Cook said.

Sealing the tunnel will be delayed until summer school ends at Montvue Elementary School on San Bernardino Avenue in Pomona.

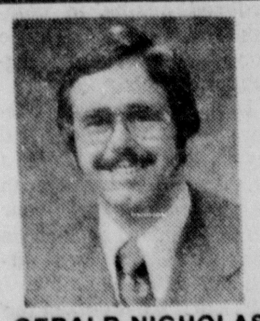

The cities of Claremont and Pomona and the Pomona School District all have agreed to the closing, after complaints that the tunnel was being used as an escape route by thieves.

Two principals in O-M District retire

Two longtime special education administrators of the Ontario-Montclair School District will retire July 1. They are Mary Meffan, principal of Cypress Orthopedic School, Ontario, and Irene McAdoo, special education principal and teacher.

Mrs. Meffan has been with the district 24 years, and principal of Cypress Orthopedic for the last 10. She received her bachelor's degree from Texas Christian University in 1938 and her master's in education from the University of Redlands in 1966.

A Texan, Mrs. Meffan operated a fine arts school, and was a recreation supervisor in Dublin, Tex., before moving to California. She has taught a course at UC Riverside on music and recreation for the handicapped. After retirement, she plans to join her daughters, Cathleen and Anne, in San Antonio, Tex.

Miss McAdoo has been with the district for 10 years as principal of the Buena Vista School, Montclair, for the trainable mentally retarded. She has served in special education for 30 years as a teacher and administrator. She was the first special education teacher and principal in the Los Angeles County, and came to Ontario-Montclair School District in 1966 as principal of Buena Vista School for the trainable mentally retarded.

Miss McAdoo received her bachelor's degree from the University of Kansas, and her master's in education from Cal State Long Beach. After retirement, she plans to teach as a substitute, study the arts, travel and do volunteer work.

Schools Supt. Jack J. Jones said that "I can't express the gratitude we in the district feel for these two retiring educators. We have one of the finest special education programs in the state here at Ontario-Montclair, and these two women were here from its inception."

Pine grown in tree bank

NEW YORK (AP) — Placing timber "in the bank" to preserve U.S. woodlands is a major objective of the nation's paper industry.

A "bank deposit," according to Continental Forest Industries President Jess L. Belser, is made possible by planting millions of new pine seedlings annually and then harvesting only 75 per cent of the growth each year.

"After a harvest," Belser said, "areas suitable for pine are replanted with genetically-improved seedlings that produce faster-growing, healthier trees."

5-year busing limit—Levi

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi said today the administration is considering seeking legislation which would set a five-year limit on court-ordered busing in communities which have made good-faith efforts to desegregate schools.

Levi told a news conference the proposed legislation "does have a provision that busing can be ordered for a three-year period, that it can then be continued for two additional years.

"Then if the orders of the court have been carried out in good faith, the assumption would be that busing would no longer be required."

Levi declared his support for busing as a means of desegregating schools in some cases, and said it's clear the Supreme Court holds that decision.

"There is no question in my mind that in some cases busing is constitutionally required," he asserted.

But he said the administration views busing as a transitional, rather than a permanent, remedy.

The tentative legislation would acknowledge the transitional nature of busing by requiring judges to review their busing orders after three years.

The court could extend busing for two more years if it found segregation persisted, Levi said. As he described it, there would be no provision for continuing busing beyond five years.

President Ford referred to the proposal in general terms on June 4, but Levi's comments were the first detailed explanation.

Levi was asked why he chose not to seek Supreme Court review of the Boston school busing case as a vehicle for urging new court guidelines limiting the scope of busing.

"What was involved was basically a question of law," he replied.

Civil rights groups had argued that department intervention would be perceived as rewarding the violence of antibusing groups in Boston.

Levi also indicated he was not convinced that the department's position, even if it prevailed, would have made a great deal of difference in the extent of busing ordered in Boston.

He declined to be more specific on grounds that the case is pending before trial court. The Supreme Court on Monday refused to review the case.

Insurance bill voted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The senate has approved a bill preventing an insurance company from raising a person's auto insurance if he was involved in an accident that was not his fault.

The bill by Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, was sent to the Assembly on a 21-9 vote Tuesday after Marks said it was unfair to levy higher rates on innocent drivers.

"Someone should pay higher insurance rates — the person who caused the accident," he said.

The bill is SB 1702.

Scholarship award made

Pomona College graduate Richard Wade Ameral of Hacienda Heights has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship for a year of graduate study in Ecuador.

The foster son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Sprague of Hacienda Heights, Ameral majored in anthropology at the college. He plans to study the major and subtle factors of integration of Indian populations with Spanish population in the Andes.

Particular areas Ameral plans to explore are agricultural communities and the effects of Spanish agricultural techniques and crops upon these communities; Catholic religion and ideological integration; effects of climate and altitude on integration; and isolation of the communities.

Ameral feels that the project will help promote further understanding between the rural and urban groups in the region and promote better understanding between the United States and Latin American countries.

Couple just graduating and reaping benefits already

The account of Stanford University graduating seniors Ray Anderson of San Dimas and Hilda Hutcherson of Tuskegee, Ala., almost sounds like a storybook tale.

The handsome young couple are beginning to reap the benefits of the investments they've made in themselves both before and during their four years at Stanford.

Ray and Hilda will graduate this month, be married in July, and enter Harvard University in September where Ray will attend law school and his bride will begin medical school classes.

A combination of athletic and academic achievement earned a college education for Ray.

"I couldn't have come to Stanford without a scholarship," says Ray, a 1972 graduate of Bonita High School where he was a quarterback on the football team and a baseball star. He was drafted as a free agent by the Oakland A's in 1972 but "didn't consider professional baseball since law school had been a long-time goal."

Ray and Hilda's "fairy tale" began in style. They met their first day on campus freshman year. Both of them lived in Roble Hall. It was at the end of their junior years that they decided they would combine their lives together along with their pursuits in graduate school.

Their next step was applying to seven of the same grad schools with the idea that they'd pick from those that were the best academically and that were located in the same vicinity. So this fall, they'll be living in Boston, both attending Harvard.

"Our dreams are no longer dreams," says Ray, a three-time letterman on the varsity football team. "They're materializing and becoming realities.

"Everyone knows the time involved in law and med school. We feel that going through it with someone you love and are compatible with will make it that much easier."

For both Ray and Hilda, their career aspirations developed when they were relatively young.

"Since scholarships weren't available in my father's time, he wasn't able to go to college," says Hilda, a 21-year-old who grew up in Tuskegee. "He'd always wanted to be a doctor. I guess I was about 8 or 9 when I started thinking about medicine as a career."

Hilda's father has worked the past 20 years as a medical assistant at a hospital in Tuskegee, population 12,000, 90 per cent black.

Ray's choice of the law profession also related back to his father's interest.

"Before my father died, my thoughts started turning toward law," says the San Dimas native. "My father had been interested in law school, but was financially unable to pursue the education. So from about age 8 on, I climbed a ladder, preparing myself for law school by doing well in school and supplementing that by doing well in athletics."

"I plan to fulfill a dream my father had for himself."

But before looking ahead to graduate school, both Ray and Hilda knew their undergraduate educations would be near impossibilities without scholarships and financial aid.

Mulrooney's goal in new job: improve govt.

PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — As the new head of the staff of a 15,500-member organization of public servants, a former Pomona and Claremont official would like to see it take more positions on public issues.

Keith Mulrooney, former city manager of Claremont, will assume his duties as the new executive director of the American Society of Public Administration July 1.

Mulrooney most recently served as the city manager of Alexandria, Va. and had served as assistant city manager of Pomona before going to Claremont for eight years.

In an interview here, Mulrooney talked about the ASPA and his future duties.

There are about 15,500 members in the organization which he describes as "probably the broadest of the various governmental public interest groups."

The membership consists of city managers and other employes of city, county and state government as well as federal service, universities, bureaus of government research and in the private sector.

Sixty per cent of the funding for the group comes from member dues and only 10 per cent from grants.

The remaining funds come from advertisement sales in publications sold by the ASPA.

Mulrooney's job will be to direct the staff operations of the giant organization and keep everything on track for the Council, which is the chief operating body of ASPA.

He has served on the ASPA Council as well as the president of the Los Angeles Metropolitan Chapter of the ASPA in 1964-65.

Although the ASPA has a long list of official purposes Mulrooney outlined what he perceives as the major thrust of the group.

"To improve the people who are in government, at all levels, through conferences, through publications and through participation in special sections (criminal justice, management services, etc.)," Mulrooney said.

Mulrooney's goals during his four-year term as executive director include " . . . expanding the membership further, to improving membership services and I'd like to work with some committees of the Council on upgrading some of our publication works."

Mulrooney would also like to see the organization take more positions on government issues that directly affect the public administrators.

"We take positions now and then on certain public issues . . . our process is rather cumbersome . . . and it takes us forever to take a position," he pointed out.

"I'd like to see the procedure revamped so we can take positions more promptly."

The ASPA offices are located in the District of Columbia. Mulrooney and his family live in nearby Alexandria.

Both he and his wife and children still consider themselves Californians and will probably return to the state.

(Mulrooney will fly from Washington to Los Angeles today to present the Harry F. Scoville Award to Claremont City Manager Norman R. King at an ASPA dinner at the Hyatt Regency Hotel.)

Mulrooney received his bachelor's degree from Stanford University in 1954 and his master's degree in public administration from USC in 1963.

The 43-year-old Californian began his public service work, following graduation from USC, in Pomona where he also served as administrative assistant.

NIFTY ROPE TRICK

Charros ride again—Mexican cowboy unit forms in Chino

Dave DeLeon just might ride away into the sunset on his horse Paint, if the Chino Police Department would let him.

The name of DeLeon's horse is more likely to be Taraze or El Jinete, however.

DeLeon, a police detective, is a spokesman for a new group of Mexican cowboys in Chino called "Asociacion De Charros Aguas Calientes."

The organization had a historical beginning in Mexico City centuries ago, according to Filemon Verdin, president of the Los Angeles chapter who has become active in the local group.

"Feudal lords got together and started this group from among the ranches in Mexico," said Verdin. They invited the Spanish viceroy to attend the opening festivities at the time, and now the group has 384 chápters all over Mexico. There also are 40 chapters in California.

The associagion was started as a form of entertainment, with Mexican charros (cowboys) "doing their thing," said DeLeon.

The cowboys perform rodeo tricks, flower designs with ropes and otherwise entertain onlookers at various events.

DeLeon has been instrumental in preparing the local chapter for performances at the opening of the Prado Park Recreation Center July 2 and at the dedication of Chino's new Civic Center July 3.

The charros have been "working out," practicing fancy rope tricks and bareback riding at a new five-acre arena they purchased recently on Magnolia Avenue, north of Edison Avenue in south Chino.

DeLeon, a five-year veteran of the police force, is very pleased about the large arena, which gives the men a place of their own.

And DeLeon has also become involved to show that cops are human. "We're not just hard-nosed guys," he said. "We live regular lives and have outside interests."

California highway group to consider reducing I-15 lanes

A proposal to reduce the section of Interstate 15 between Ontario and San Diego from six and eight lanes to four lanes is being considered today by the California Highway Commission.

State highway officials are seeking the reduced number of lanes as a means of speeding up construction by two or three years.

The present schedule calls for completion of the 120-mile route between Cajon Pass above San Bernardino and San Diego by 1985.

In requesting the four lanes, officials reported the population growth along the proposed route has been less than anticipated, a mass transit program between the Los Angeles and San Digo areas may reduce the need for a freeway corridor and the reduced scope would speed up construction by two to three years.

With the proposed four lanes, officials propose having truck passing lanes on steep grades.

At present, that 15 mile section north of the San Bernardino Freeway in Ontario to the Barstow Freeway in Cajon Pass is scheduled for completion by December. Some sections are open to traffic and others are under construction.

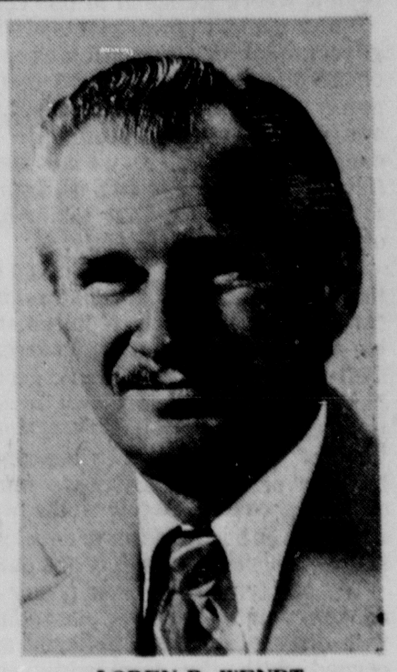

In addition, the state has allocated $19.9 million for construction of the three mile segment between the San Bernardino and Pomona freeways. This will include a major interchange and eight lanes of roadway.

The new segment will be divided into two construction projects. Work is expected to begin after July 1.

State officials reported they are preparing a new environmental impact statement for that section of the Interstate 15 through Norco.

Because of a suit filed by some residents, the court has mandated the state file a new impact statement.

This is now being prepared and officials hope to have it back to the courts in 1979.

LOREN R. WENDT

San Dimas chamber taps Wendt

Loren R. Wendt, district manager of Southern California Gas Co., has been elected 1976-77 president of the San Dimas Chamber of Commerce.

Wendt serves as manager of gas company activities in the cities of San Dimas, Walnut, Glendora, Azusa, Covina, West Covina and Baldwin Park.

John Perry of Perry Color Card will assist him as vice president. Jerry Jernigan of J and R Liquor Store will act as treasurer.

Wendt, a resident of San Dimas, previously served the chamber as a member of the board of directors, co-coordinator of the Vaudeville '76 show and chairman of the legislative committee. He was a co-chairman of the City of San Dimas birthday celebration in 1974 and is a member of the Rotary Club there. As an amateur magician for more than 35 years, he is a member of the Academy of Magical Arts and Sciences with headquarters at the Magic Castle in Los Angeles.

He and his wife, Betty, have two sons, Doug, 26, and Mark, 22. He began his career with Southern California Gas Co., 29 years ago.

Bar slaying case

Suspect is ruled competent for trial

Cleveland Lyle Clark, 23-year-old Pomona man charged with murder in the shotgun-slaying March 8 of a bartender in Pomona, was ruled competent to stand trial Wednesday at the close of a lengthy sanity hearing in Pomona Superior Court.

After the jury made its decision, Judge Sam Cianchetti scheduled Clark's trial to begin Aug. 9 and ordered him to remain in custody in lieu of $100,000 bail.

The hearing, which lasted almost three days, was the result of defense claims that Clark's sanity was in doubt, that he was unable to understand the nature of the charges against him, and was unable to cooperate with his lawyer in his own defense.

The same action resulted in the co-defendant in the case, Evelyn Miriam Terrell, 34, being committed to a mental institution while criminal proceeding against her were suspended. Mrs. Terrell was charged with being an accessory after the fact of murder.

The couple was arrested several hours after the victim, William Hyland, 34, was shot to death inside the Belinca Terrace at 480 Pomona Mall West. Authorities charged that Clark returned to the tavern and shot Hyland after Hyland had refused him service earlier. Mrs. Terrell accompanied Clark both times and drove him away in her car, after the shooting, they said.

Aisenson president of judge assn.

David J. Aisenson, a Los Angeles Municipal Court judge who is seeking the office of Pomona Superior Court Judge Robert M. Takasugi, has been elected chairman of the Municipal Court Judges Association of Los Angeles County.

Aisenson was elected head of the organization which numbers 143 members and includes judges of the county's 25 municipal courts.

Aisenson is involved in a run-off election in November against incumbent Takasugi who recently was appointed to the federal court bench.

The situation apparently is so complicated that the County Counsel's office has yet to decide if Takasugi should be on the ballot, and if not, if Aisenson should get the office.

One other possibility is that Gov. Brown may declare the office vacant and appoint a replacement for Takasugi, not necessarily Aisenson.

Claremont High graduates 398

Claremont High's Class of 1976 received 398 diplomas at the Pomona College Alumni Field Thursday night, the first time since 1931 that a Claremont High commencement exercise had not been held at Bridges Auditorium.

More than 4,000 parents, brothers and sisters and friends filled the stands and the seats that had been set up on the gridiron facing the graduates in their maroon and white gowns.

The three commencement speakers drew on their own personalities in talking to their classmates about four years of high school, and the future that lies ahead.

Chris Kearney said that specific things are interwoven into the era of today to which "we are contributing."

"We mustn't cling to this era no matter how important it is to us," he said. "We need to depend on something constant, to depend on God, the something that won't let you down."

Speaking for "the very spirited class of 1976," Debbie Ansell asked what is to remain after the applause dies down and the diplomas are handed out.

"We have been educated — to a degree," she commented, "But are we prepared to face the test of the future? Are we prepared for the world of Watergate?"

Arthur Cain explored the world of dreams which a child may lose as he grows.

He said that dreams die by the thousands when a person reaches high school, but that a person reaches a turning point in life each time he realizes a dream.

The commencement exercise was dedicated to the memory of Russell James Collister, a handicapped student who died recently in class.

The class of 1976 also lost another classmate, Betty Grable, who had open-heart surgery in April, and died at home Tuesday night, school officials said.

Hitting nuclear power balance

Now that Californians have voted against hog-tying nuclear power — and with that issue coming up in a number of other states — it is a good time to review where we stand in this controversial field.

First, nuclear power plants are neither so safe as government mathematicians promise, nor so dangerous as Ralph Nader's men claim. Nuclear power may, in the end, turn out to be roughly as dangerous as the automobile — and that is dangerous enough, as we all know. But not sufficiently fearsome to stop us from driving, or even to pass or to enforce laws taking dangerous drivers off the streets permanently.

The danger, of course, must be balanced against the need. And the conclusion reached at scores of conferences on energy requirements is that possible new or expanded energy sources — solar, coal, hydrogen, wind, offshore oil, geothermal and the like — are either so far down the line or so limited in potential for the next 30 years or so because of a lack of scientific or engineering know-how or because of current cost, we must either throw ourselves on the mercy of the world's oil cartel countries or buckle down to developing and producing nuclear power as safely and quickly as possible.

The problems of nuclear power are threefold — dangers within the power plant, dangers connected with disposal of waste material and dangers concerned with the worldwide accumulation of plutonium.

None of these dangers can be eliminated. They can be reduced.

First. Reasonable regulations can be formulated for the location, internal construction and other safeguards necessary to prevent a catastrophe under all reasonable and most unreasonable circumstances. Regulations have been developed — but leave loopholes a mile wide, in fire safety for one. The safety rules must deal thoroughly with more than the reactor itself. They must in more detail deal with the plant in which the reactor is located and the environment — whether or not an earthquake fault line lies in the immediate area, for example. Prevailing winds and the location of heavy population belts, must be considered, and what a minor fire might do to electrical controls throughout the buildings involved.

These improved safety regulations must be clear. They must be general enough to apply to all nuclear power plants. They must be debated and bugs ironed out in advance of enforcement. Once enacted, nuclear plants should be allowed with little formality so long as regulations were followed to the letter.

Meanwhile, there must be a step-up of research on safety as it relates to power plants.

Second: today and in the immediate future the disposal of waste material would pose no serious problem if nuclear scientists would put their talents to developing an economical method for separating dangerously radioactive material from the rest of the guck. This would leave a bulk of problem material so small as to be negligible.

Other solutions must be found for the long run. It is as certain, the history of science indicates, that given sufficient research, uses can be found for the bulk of radioactive materials now discarded. Once uses are found the disposal problem disappears.

Third: Plutonium — there's real danger here. Once plutonium is produced in quantity and this material used in many lands, the danger of nuclear war increases — along with the danger of theft by extremists.

It is possible to devise safeguards adequate on paper. But human beings being what they are, men will grow careless. The inclination therefore, is to go slow with the breeder reactor, which produces plutonium in quantity, and depends on today's nuclear power systems — with improvements — while attempting to leapfrog to fusion power.

The more immediate danger is a German-French offer to export reprocessing plants for extracting weapons-grade plutonium from used reactor fuel. Deals with Pakistan, Brazil and possibly Iran are already in the works. There seems no recourse except for the U.S. and Russia to bar sales of enriched uranium to those who play this deadly game.

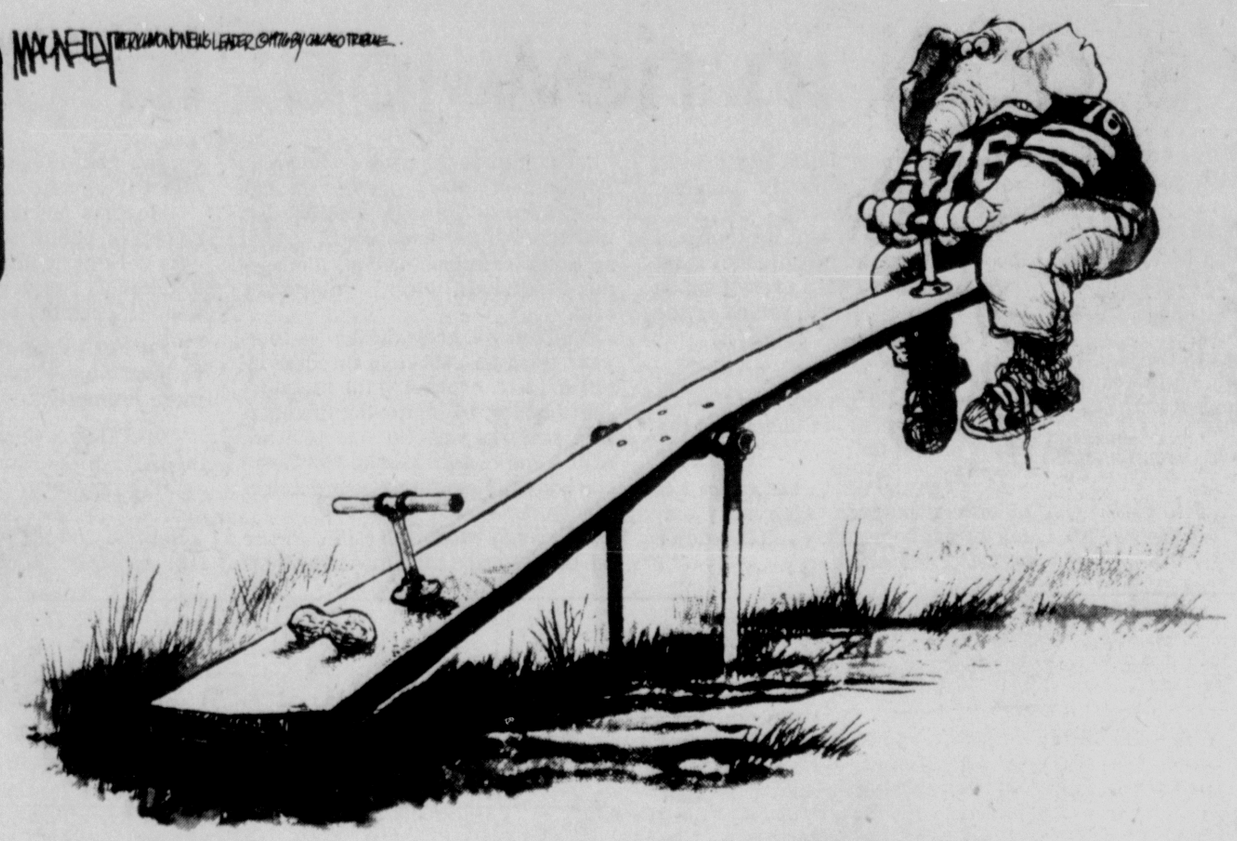

Reports are the world supply of uranium does not today appear to be sufficient for the future. Satellite pictures, however, suggest strongly that with sufficient follow-through we shall find supplies ample to support current types of uranium-fueled reactors up to and well into the period fusion plants are practical.

The public forum
Chino split by YRS

Dear Editor:

As I sit in meeting after meeting of the Chino school board, I often wonder what is the rationale that motivates the board. The old saying "What's good for the goose is good for the gander" certainly isn't true of this district.

Injustices about in comparing the instigating of the Fundamental School with the instigating of YRS at the high school level. The Fundamental School has proven itself to be quality education in every sense of the word. YRS at the high school level has proven in many instances to be inferior in education as is evidenced not only by some classes being discontinued at Don Lugo, but the fact that over 55% of the students enrolled there next year do not want YRS.

Yet, the administration continues its push to get YRS into Chino High. A year ago a survey showed that approximately only 225 students at Don Lugo wanted YRS extended to Chino High. The survey for the Fundamental School showed 1,400 students interested in this type of education. Trustee Vander Poel commented that the district can't afford the luxury of offering different types of education, yet at the secondary level three different types of education are offered to the students.

It took almost three months before the board approved a committee to work on the Fundamental School. It took two weeks to form the YRS committee. The YRS committee was given a budget. No money was considered for Fundamental School research. Fundamental School committee members had to rely on information from printed material duplicated by the District Office. YRS personnel has had the privilege of attending many conferences and districts both in California and outside the state. Fundamental School couldn't be discussed until the results of the survey were tabulated. YRS is underway but the results of that survey have never been revealed.

A special survey for the Fundamental School concept was too costly to mail, yet because one question concerning YRS was omitted from the survey at Don Lugo, the entire student body, even those on the traditional schedule, was sent a second letter with this one question to be answered. The high school personnel were not allowed to enter in the decision of YRS at the elementary level, yet the elementary people were given the opportunity of expressing their desires at the high school level.

At these board meetings I constantly hear talk of the housing shortage and how to alleviate it but never a word about what may happen to education. At one time Chino High housed 2,300 students. What has happened to those classrooms? Why do we have a housing shortage in the district? Could it be because in the district's desire to force YRS on the community, we were told YRS would solve our problems and now the district is finding out it was wrong? Had a bond election been proposed two years ago, we would not be in the predicament we find ourselves in today. Even with this constant pushing of YRS, 35% of our students who have the choice are enrolled in the traditional program.

Don Glines, the YRS coordinator for the state, points out that the only solution for the success of any YRS program is options, giving families a choice of plans. Forty-two of the 46 districts in our state using the year round plan present it as an option, yet our board repeatedly discusses the future of education in terms of YRS. The board recently decided to bring this issue to a vote of the people, knowing that YRS can't lose. Would the board, however, have been this generous had the vote been as it should be: Yes, I want YRS, or No, I don't want YRS? Whatever the results of the election, unity will be long in returning to Chino because of the split that YRS has caused.

Jack Anderson
Mayor Daley's man in D. C.

WASHINGTON — Rep. John Fary, D.-Ill., an aging, ailing veteran of Chicago politics, doesn't make any bones about the fact that he's Mayor Richard Daley's man in Washington.

The Chicago mayor resides in Fary's congressional district, tells him how to vote and whom to hire. As Fary cheerfully acknowledges, Daley asked him to serve out the unexpired term of the late Rep. John Kluczynski, D.-Ill.

This would be of no great consequence to Americans at large, except that Fary has placed some of the mayor's henchmen on the public payroll. They are paid to work for Congress, but they appear to be doing political chores for Mayor Daley.

Gloria Johnson, for example, is carried on Fary's congressional payroll at $13,000 a year. Yet she can be found, not in Fary's office, but at Democratic Party headquarters in Chicago's 13th ward.

Mike Healy is also listed on the congressman's payroll as a $12,000-a-year aide. Yet he has seldom been seen in Fary's office but works as an attorney in the private law office of a Chicago alderman.

We traced another $8,000-a-year Fary aide, Raymond Anderzunas, to the Midway Funeral Home. Fary explained to our associate, Bob Owens, that the funeral director helps out by contacting "schools and clubs." But the congressman conceded: "We don't kill him with work."

Poor Fary has been left with a skeleton staff of three to run his Washington office. They literally lead him through the underground maze that links the House office buildings with the Capitol building. He has found the route from his office to the House Public Works Committee particularly tortuous.

The congressman, obviously not one of Capitol Hill's brightest lights, is strangely awed by the ability of his top aide, Tom Campbell, to get him "several write-ups in the Congressional Record." Of course, any congressman can insert anything he wishes in the Congressional Record.

Fary, unfortunately, is a sick man. He missed his first four months in Washington because of three major operations. But he says his doctors have now pronounced him fit to run for another term in November.

The faltering Fary was once a brash, bouncy politico who was known in the Chicago wards as "Big John." When Daley sent him to Congress, Fary presented toilet-shaped radios to House leaders. Accompanying each gift was a note explaining that the "Little John" came from "Big John Fary."

But Fary is most celebrated in Chicago for his 18-year battle to legalize bingo in Illinois. He commemorated his triumph by dropping his "Big John" monicker, at least temporarily, and calling himself "Mr. Bingo."

He also passed out 250 cases of "Bingo Bottles," containing whisky and bearing a bingo board in the shape of Illinois.

But Fary's most endearing quality to party leaders is his staunch loyalty to them. On a flight to Chicago, for instance, Fary spotted Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D.-Ill. The congressman immediately proclaimed to traveling companions that Stevenson would be "the next President" and tried to get an announcement made on the public address system that the senator was on board.

Footnote: Stevenson said he had only a "vague" recollection of the incident. Fary denied that he has used his payroll for political purposes. Anderzunas, the funeral director, acknowledged that he is on Fary's congressional payroll although he operates a funeral home. Gloria Johnson and Mike Healy did not return our calls.

AGNEW'S PENANCE: Spiro Agnew, the deposed Vice President, has quietly tried to make his peace with two former associates who were alienated by his recent attacks upon Jews in the media.

William Safire, who wrote many of Agnew's 1970 campaign speeches, responded sadly: "Undertaking a crusade to persuade the American people that they are being brainwashed and manipulated by a cabal of Jews who sit astride most of the channels of communication, and thereby encouraging an irrational hatred of Jews — that makes you a bigot."

Agnew's former press secretary, Vic Gold, agreed. Concluded Gold: "Agnew has simply sold out." Gold referred to him "as a man who once held the trust of millions of Americans. Millions, that is, of shnooks like me."

After these responses appeared in The New York Times last month, Agnew telephoned both Safire and Gold. The former Vice President pleaded that he was not anti-Semitic, not a bigot. Both told him bluntly that he had been talking like one.

SUN SHARES: Big corporations are seeking to take over ownership of the sun. The Center for Science in the Public Interest has discovered that patents for solar energy are being monopolized by such firms as General Motors, General Electric, Martin Marietta, Mobil Oil, Dupont, Boeing and United Aircraft.

The Center found that of 47 solar heating patents assigned from 1965 to 1975, two-thirds were obtained by giant companies. Between 1950 and 1975, big companies were assigned 25 or 28 solar electric power patents. Yet before 1943, the big firms had virtually no solar heating patents.

The same pattern is developing with federal grant money. Both the Energy Research and Development Administration and the National Science Foundation have given more than 80 per cent of their solar grants to big firms.

LUXURY TRAVEL: The World Bank, Inter-American Development Bank and the International Monetary Fund were set up to lend money to underdeveloped nations. But not all the money goes to help poor countries.

The three prestigious banks have spent more than $500,000 in the last two years, for example, to pay the travel expenses of wives who accompanied bank officials on business trips.

A Treasury Department study showed the World Bank, during a 21-month period, "funded 268 trips by spouses." In 44 cases, the bank paid not only for transportation but subsistence. The average wife's travel expenses ran well over $2,000.

The Inter-American Development Bank paid the way for 76 wives to accompany their husbands during the same 21-month period, at an average cost of $710. The International Monetary Fund paid the wives' expenses in 26 cases, shelling out an average of more than $2,000 per trip.

Spokesmen for the international banking organizations explained that most spouse travel is permitted only after the husband has been out of the country for months.

While most banking bigwigs prefer to travel first class, one exception is World Bank head Robert McNamara. The former Defense Secretary flies tourist almost without exception. He has been known to fume as his subordinates file into first class seats.

Just in jest

I suppose it was just another one of those things we can blame on over-exuberant bicentennial celebrating. Anyway, someone apparently decided we had finally arrived at that point in time when the historical thing to do was bomb Plymouth Rock. And as long as it had to happen, my greatest regret is that a lot of the status seekers who are forever bragging about how their ancestors came over on the Mayflower weren't on the rock at the time.

Sacramento scene
School bus safety

By EARL G. WATERS

It took the death of 29 kids from Yuba City for the legislature to discover some big loopholes in the laws designed to protect school children from injuries while being transported.

While the exact cause of the recent tragedy has not been determined it has brought to light the exemptions and weaknesses in the present laws governing the operation of school buses.

Basically the laws are good ones. They require special certification by the state for those who drive school buses. Such persons must not only possess a license to drive buses but additionally undertake 40 hours of school bus training, meet physical standards, and pass both written and driving tests. They must repeat this every two years, taking an added 20 hours of training and passing the tests again.

The standards for school buses are high and annual inspections are required. Many feel that is not frequent enough and some districts self-impose mechanical inspections as often as every 1,500 hours and also require daily inspections of such things as tires, brakes and steering. It would seem that these locally adopted rules come closer to the safety mark than does the state law.

But the barn door in the law is that which exempts buses not regularly used. Yet thousands of children are bused around by school districts each year for special occasions, as were the Yuba City children. In such situations neither the bus nor the driver is subject to the state standards for school buses.

Acting promptly to close this gap, Senate Transportation Committee Chairman Randolph Collier is rushing through a bill to require any bus or driver used by the school district to meet present requirements.

His move is to remedy the immediate and obvious problem as it relates to the Yuba City case. But Collier is not stopping there. He intends to give the matter a thorough study with the view to further legislation to eliminate any other oversights.

Not yet examined is the extent to which regular bus service, such as city transits, is used as an alternative to school owned buses. This may be the case where such use is deemed less expensive than providing service by the district. School children are given tokens at reduced or no cost with the school district subsidizing the program. In such situations it may be that those buses and drivers should meet school standards.

And, although the Highway Patrol commissioned a specialist to determine whether the use of seat belts might have saved Yuba City children's lives, Collier thinks the question of seatbelts on school buses deserves further study. A shadow has been raised on the CHP findings by the fact their specialist had previously issued a report holding that seat belts would serve no purpose on school buses. Another study by one whose objectivity is not blighted by a prior conviction might be more reassuring.

Not to be overlooked is the question of whether the law requires schools to use buses only. It may be that, like youth organizations, they can use trucks or other vehicles not designed to carry passengers and escape entirely all regulations.

Sometime back a flat bed truck transporting children on an outing flipped over spilling kids all over the freeway with tragic results. Even in the face of that accident, Assemblyman John Miller was unable to enact a law prohibiting the carrying of children on trucks, despite two valiant efforts to gain that protection for the young.

One of the reasons for his failure was the strong opposition of the YMCA whose arguments went to the matter of costs. It seems the buck loomed more important than the safety of the kids.

PET OF THE WEEK

Ann Landers

Not sticking up for doctors

Dear Ann Landers: I noticed you call on doctors frequently for help with questions involving medicine. In exchange for their help you manage to cover up for them very nicely by manufacturing alibis for their mistakes (which are buried in various cemeteries), and you're quite a pal to the A.M.A.

I base my statements on the advice you gave recently when a reader wanted to know where to report a doctor whose conduct with a woman patient was, shall we say, out of line. You said, "Go to your County Medical Society."

Such rubbish! You know very well doctors always side with doctors. How about a better answer? — On To You

Dear Off Base: It's untrue that doctors always side with doctors. The leaders in the medical profession are more diligent than ever in their efforts to weed out the alcoholics, incompetents and "knife-happy" menaces.

I've said it before and I'll say it again: If you have a complaint against a physician and you don't trust the County Medical Society, take your complaint to the state's medical licensure board. It then becomes a matter of public record. The board meetings are open to the public. If the board decides against the physician, he can be reprimanded, or his license to practice can be suspended or revoked. And I say, "Good riddance." The world doesn't need any more fourth-raters — in any profession or craft.

Dear Ann Landers: I wonder how many husbands handed their wives that letter in your column written by the man who said he'd like to give his wife to the necrophiliac because she was "as good as dead" in bed.

I was a wife who had that column shoved in my face. "Read this," said the lummox. "Maybe you'll recognize someone you know."

"I plead guilty on all counts," I replied. "And the reason I'm dead in bed is because you are an inconsiderate, repulsive slob." I then decided, as long as I had opened up the can of worms, I ought to let him have it with both barrels — and I did.

I told him a man who hasn't shaved or bathed after a hard day's work, and smells of cigarettes and beer and belches so loud he can be heard in the next room, then says, "Your dinner was lousy," shouldn't expect his wife to turn on automatically just because he says, "How about it?"

He actually listened for 20 minutes, then replied, "I'm glad you told me. I'll do better from now on." And he did. That very night.

So thanks for helping us both, Ann. You're wonderful. — Feeling Great

Dear Great: What happy news! Not all women would get such an enlightened response, but I'm delighted you did. Perhaps your story will help others. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann: You were right about plants responding to sweet talk and beautiful music. I remember that several readers made fun of you when you made the statement.

A study at Drexel University in Philadelphia showed that when house plants were continually subjected to 100 decibels of noise, their growth rate declined 47 per cent in six days. Right on, Babe! — A Paducah Fan

Dear Fan: Thanks for the scientific data. Since I started to talk nice to my plants they've done much better.

What was first TV commercial?

Do men who marry women older than themselves tend to chase? So inquires a client. Our Love and War man wouldn't say so, no. The fact that Disraeli, who was younger than his wife by at least a dozen years, kept four different bedrooms for himself so nobody ever knew where he was sleeping, that doesn't prove anything. And the fact that President Warren G. Harding, who also was younger than his wife, developed a reputation as a closet lover, that doesn't prove anything, either.

Some ant hills in Australia are a little like compasses. The white ants of the northern part of that continent build hills that point directly north and south.

It was the Babylonian Hammurabi Code of 4,000 years ago, too, that first set a maximum interest rate for loans.

FIRST TV AD

Q. "Who sponsored the first TV commercial?"

A. The Bulova Watch Company. It was on a Tuesday, July 1, 1941. Station WNDT, now WNBC, ran it at a cost of $9, as follows: "At the sound of the tone it will be exactly 1:30 (Tone) — B-U-L-O-V-A — Bulova watch time." Any seasoned citizen will tell you the same commercial had been running for many years on radio.

Q. "How do you account for the fact that the bloodhound grows a lot more skin than body?"

A. Among the early hounds, the looser the skin, the better the chance for survival. Because the predators' teeth were less likely to get a firm grip. That's one theory.

Q. "What kind of musical instruments are used in a Chinese orchestra?"

A. Drums, cymbals, castanets, horns, flutes and three varieties of bells: po-chung, pe-chung and pien-chung.

OWNED BY WOMEN

Question arises as to how many businesses in this country are owned entirely by women. About 400,000. Two out of five are in California, New York, Texas, Illinois and Ohio. Real estate offices, cafes, stenographic services, grocery stores and motels make up a lot of those operations.

The town of "Usa" in Japan was named with a commercial purpose. Back in the days when that country was flooding our markets with cheap imitations of our own goods, a few wily businessmen over there renamed one small manufacturing area so its merchandise could be stamped: "Made in USA".

Spring is the time when a young man's fancy turns to romance. So said the poet. Or words to that effect. But it's wrong, evidently. An intensive eight-year study shows the low point of the year for the conception of human babies falls between May and July.

Old Ed Durling contended: "Red-haired women and brown-eyed honey blondes should be kissed goodnight on the first date, and the kiss should be of a 30-second duration."

Vacation time spaced out

Well, the family has finally decided on a date when we can all take a vacation.

It's a shame it isn't the same date, but then nothing is perfect.

All winter long, we've been stumbling over one another. The vacation season comes and everyone scatters like newborn field mice on a cold day.

"My dates are inflexible," announced my husband. "When you're an educator they get sticky if you take off while the children are there."

"I've got my part-time job that ties me up," said a son.

"When does it end?"

"On the day I fail to show up."

"What about the last week in August, gang?"

"That's when we all go back to school."

"What about the third week of August?"

"We start football practice."

"The second week of August?"

"I got tickets for a concert."

"The last week of July?"

"I've got that dental work that can't be put off."

"And the third week of July?"

"Impossible. They're painting the house that week."

"Okay then, the second."

"Count me out. I'm babysitting for the Sterups."

"The first week of July?"

"Travel on a holiday weekend? Absolutely not."

"Okay, then, the last week of June."

"That's between paychecks and I can't afford it."

"What's everyone doing next week?"

"If you think I can pull together new underwear for this group in a couple of days, you're crazy," I said flatly.

"Turn back the calendar and we'll run through it again," said my husband.

You know, I liked it better in the good old days when we packed the playpen, the potty chair, the feeding table, the vaporizer, the feeding dish that revolved and played "Mary Had A Little Lamb," the rocking chair, eight suitcases, three foot lockers, an inflatable wading pool, a security blanket, a baseball return net, and two tricycles and Daddy snarled, "We're going to have a great time or I'm going to break a few heads."

Dr. Miller

Dog only as smart as you

DEAR DR. MILLER: My dog doesn't seem to be too bright. Is there some kind of training book I can get to teach him something, at least? — M.N.

DEAR M.N.: If the dog isn't too bright, it isn't too likely he'll get all that much out of a book on training. A good training book might not be a waste of time, however, particularly if you're willing to study it. You can only train a dog, even a smart one, something you yourself understand. Too many owners start "training" their animals with only a vague idea of what they want to accomplish, and even less of an idea of how they're going to accomplish it.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We didn't expect it. He's her brother, after all. But Queenie is definitely pregnant. Tom Cat, her brother, is out about doing it again, or trying to. My question concerns the fact that even though she's pregnant, he still eats more than she does. Is this abnormal? Might he have worms? — N.G.

DEAR N.G.: Tom "Cat about's" caloric consumption isn't surprising. On a per-pound basis, he may be eating about the same, or a shade more than Queenie, but he probably even now outweighs her. His current activities could certainly account for those calories (with or without worms). Queenie's caloric consumption may almost double once she's well into nursing kittens. The cause of her extremely high caloric consumption will be more obvious then.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My hobby is raising baby birds to release when they're old and strong enough. Mind you, these baby birds really are orphans or abandoned, not babies who'd have had care if they'd just been left alone. When I first started, I was feeding the babies the right formula and often enough, but I still lost a great number of them for one simple reason. I was feeding their food too cold. After making up the formula and using it once, I would store it in the refrigerator, forgetting to warm it up sufficeintly for each following feeding. The poor, starving babies would get chilled tummies, indigestion, and die. When I finally began making sure the food was not too cold, but not too hot either, I began to save baby birds. Please print this. — C.B.

DEAR C.B.: A timely tip for birds — and tepid is the word. While cold food is the more common cause of such acute indigestion, piping hot meals could cause trouble, too.

Dr. Lamb

Obese teen needs watching

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a girl, 15 years old and weigh 165 pounds. I have tried every diet from Weight Watchers to Ayds candy. Nothing seems to work. I want to lose weight real badly, but whatever I try doesn't seem to work. Whenever I want a piece of candy or cake my parents try to make me feel guilty. I do want to be thin but everything just seems to fail. My mom was overweight and my dad is too, but none of my brothers or sisters are. I sometimes wonder why I have to be fat and not my brothers or sisters instead. Please, would you tell me what to do. My parents won't take me to the doctor unless it is absolutely necessary.

I also haven't menstruated for eight months and I was wondering if excessive weight could be the cause.

DEAR READER — I hope your parents will take you to a doctor for a check-up. Sometimes being overweight and not having regular menstrual periods are indications of an endocrine problem. The only way to find out is to have an examination and an evaluation of your eating habits.

Any diet that restricts your calories sufficiently in relation to your activity will result in weight loss. Weight Watchers has been very helpful to many people who want to lose weight. It is important, though, to avoid those fad diets that are often proposed to lose weight rapidly. Rapid weight loss can be harmful. Most such diets are unsound and cause nutritional deficiencies.

I'm sending you a copy of The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet which will give you a well balanced diet that you can use to lose weight. Others who want it can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I would also like to recommend that you start an exercise program. Start with simple walking. Increase the amount of walking you do gradually until you can walk an hour a day. Add other activities if you can. Swimming is good during the summer months. The exercise will help you strengthen your muscles while helping you lose fat. Everyone on a weight-losing diet should also have an exercise program.

A tendency to obesity does seem to be inherited. We see the same thing in the animal world. Beef cattle breeds tend to be chunky and fat. A dairy cow is less muscular, less fat, and tends to produce lots of milk. So, genes are important. However, you can alter the influence of genes by your life style. You can build muscles, eliminate fat and improve your appearance.

Family habits also influence the future outcome of obesity. Overeating is sometimes learned. When a child is overfed during early development it can increase the chances of being obese. Also, there is good evidence that lack of physical activity in childhood is a significant factor in adult obesity. This may be even more important than the eating habits at that age.

It is a little late to correct these factors from childhood that often determine how much of a battle with obesity you will have as an adult. Still with a good exercise program and a sensible diet you can gradually lose weight and learn how to keep from regaining it. You will lose a lot of weight the first week but an average loss of a pound a week is fine for most people. It takes longer but it lasts.

For Friday, June 18, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You should be fortunate today in arrangements with those to whom you have strong emotional ties. Let them initiate the action.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's to your advantage today to anticipate in group activities. Someone in the crowd may have a business proposition tailored just for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A reliable friend may help you accomplish something today you'd have difficulty doing for yourself. Keep her role confidential.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Pals put a great deal of credence in your opinions today. Be sure your thoughts are worthy of emulation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Joint ventures are your strong suit today, especially if you're teamed with someone who is enterprising and thinks big.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The aspects look promising for you today where legalities are invovled. This could be a good day to sign contracts, provided you're soundly advised.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Rewards will be more generous than usual today. Do your best even though you may feel no one really cares.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may be asked to manage something today that another finds too big for her to handle. The size won't intimidate you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is the day to wrap up anyting of major importance you've left hanging. Stay atop it till you're satisfied with the results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Without being a Pollyanna today, look for the good rather than that which is negative. Surprisingly, most of what you'll find will be positive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Financial opportunity hovers about you today if you'll take the time to search for it. One promising area is close family contacts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If things are a trifle slow getting off the ground today, don't despair. Your luck grows as the shadows lengthen.

Your Birthday, June 18, 1976

You may attempt something this coming year that you previously felt was beyond your scope. Someone who is backstopping you will prove to be a major asset.

There are two cures for notrumpitis. One is to quit playing bridge. The other is for the sufferer to try to find some other bid on all occasions before he bids notrump.

Neither seems to work. After South wound up one trick short at three notrump it never occured to him that he might well have bid two hearts instead of one notrump and that he certainly should have bid three hearts instead of three notrump.

Either of those bids would have led to his partner playing a cinch four-heart contract.

South never thought of that because he was too busy telling North that he should have rebid his five-card heart suit. That is another symptom of acute notrumpitis. The sufferer is always in there blaming his unfortunate partner for his own misdeeds.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know what the odds are that North will hold at least five spades. North has just responded one spade to South's opening bid of one.

If North follows the recommendations of the American Bridge Teacher's Association the odds are almost 2 to 1 that he has five spades since with 4-4 in either spades and diamonds or spades and hearts he is supposed to respond in the red suite.

FUTURE LOOKS BRIGHT — Stanford University seniors Ray Anderson of San Dimas and Hilda Hutcherson of Tuskegee, Ala., will be wed in July and off to Harvard in the fall. Anderson will enter law school while his bride begins medical school studies.

scholarship. I couldn't have gone to school anywhere," says Hilda, the eldest of five children in her family. "I always had everything I needed, but my family just could not afford to send me to college."

Known on the Stanford campus as "Mr. Sunshine" for his sunny disposition and magnetic personality, Ray was offered athletic grants at several other universities but had little trouble in deciding to come to Stanford.

"Stanford has a great balance of academics and athletics, so my decision to come here was not hard," Ray recalls. "I felt it'd be a good springboard into law school."

Outside of the classroom, Ray devoted his time to four years of football and two of varsity baseball. A political science major, he is Stanford's career kickoff return leader, having returned 66 boots for 1,365 yards in three seasons.

During her junior year, Hilda spent some 30 to 40 hours per week dancing with the Stanford Band as one of the five pompon dollies.

"In the fall of '74 I had two human biology courses as well as one in biochemistry. My class load was 21 units. Believe me, I learned to budget my time wisely," she says. "But you know, my three quarters as a dolly, I got my best grades." She now has a 3.5 grade point average.

As minority students, Ray and Hilda concur that being black has made little if any difference in the opportunities available to them both inside and outside the Stanford realm.

"Being black has no advantage or disadvantage," says Ray. "You have to earn anything that's worth having. During the civil rights movement in the '60's, the attitude was 'black is beautiful.' Now the attitude is that black is acceptable."

Police hero suspended

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Patrolman Dan O'Connor, who was injured in May while rescuing victims of a tanker truck explosion in Houston, is getting less than a hero's welcome back home.

When he returned to his job here Tuesday, he learned that he was suspended for three days — for having called in sick in order to go to Houston to look for work.

"I don't really expect a pat on the back for what happened in Houston," O'Connor said, "but I was a little surprised when I got the letter of suspension."

O'Connor and a fellow South Charleston officer, Walter Evans, had gone to Houston seeking jobs on the police force when they encountered the accident scene involving a tanker containing anhydrous ammonia on an interstate freeway. The accident claimed the lives of six persons.

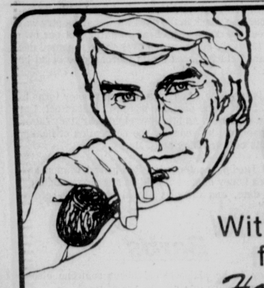

The two officers and Evans' wife, Bobbie, a registered nurse, began pulling people to safety.

"People were turning their cars around and trying to escape," O'Connor had said in an earlier interview. "They were saying that there was poisonous gas. It was mass confusion. People were screaming for help. And in my opinion, no policeman worth his salt would turn away when people are screaming for help."

O'Connor, 28, was overcome by the gas as he was carrying someone out of the cloud of ammonia.

South Charleston Mayor Richie Robb, who signed the suspension notice, said it had been submitted by Police Chief R.E. Dewey.

Dewey said he did not want to discuss details. "This boy had it pretty rough and I don't want to do anything to hurt him," he said.

Bicentennial spectacle

Tall ships will ride seas again in '76

By MICHAEL SCHAILL

NEW YORK (NEA) — To ride the brave wind and defy the raging sea.

This is the vision many have in thinking of square-rigged sailing vessels — forgetting the hardship, danger and brutality associated with the sail-powered ships of the past while mourning the passing of a glorious institution

The age of the canvas-powered commercial fleet is indeed past. But the tradition of training young men and women under sail is alive and reasonably well throughout the world.

As a Bicentennial token of proof, an armada of steel-hulled "tall ships" — large seagoing schooners and square-rigged windjammers — will congregate at Newport, R.I. during late June to take part in Operation Sail 1976.

Some of these vessels left Europe on the first leg of the biennial Tall Ships Race, along the way being joined by a host of other windjammers — small sail-training vessels, passenger - carrying schooners and classic sailing yachts.

The "tall ships" of Operation Sail get underway from Newport on July 1, bound for New York. Most will make the passage down Long Island Sound. Those with masts too tall to pass under the Brooklyn Bridge will "go outside," sailing as close as safety permits to Long Island's South Shore.

Arriving in New York July 2, the larger ships will anchor off Sandy Hook while the smaller ones gather in Gravesend Bay.

On Sunday, July 4, the armada will take part in a grand Bicentennial Review starting at 11 A.M. at the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge. Forming a long column, the ships, led by the U.S. Coast Guard Academy's bark "Eagle", will proceed up the harbor and into the Hudson River as far as Spuyten Duyvil, several miles north of George Washington Bridge, from there to disperse to a number of anchorages spread all over New York harbor. Fireworks, parades and parties ashore follow.

Following the New York review, many of the ships will visit other United States ports.

The last such sailing spectacle to take place in the United States was Operation Sail 1964. The date was July 14. The occasion was the New York World's Fair.

Instead of the hoped-for clear blue sky, there was the haze which seems to characterize New York much of the year. But strangely, this less-than perfect weather contributed to the day. The view down the harbor towards Gravesend Bay, where the ships were anchored, could have been a turn-of-the-century photograph — a gray-brown scene filled with a forest of masts and rigging.

The windjammers formed two columns and, led by the "Eagle", one after another passed the reviewing ships, "U.S.S. Randolph", saluted, set sail and glided north to their anchorage just below the Washington Bridge.

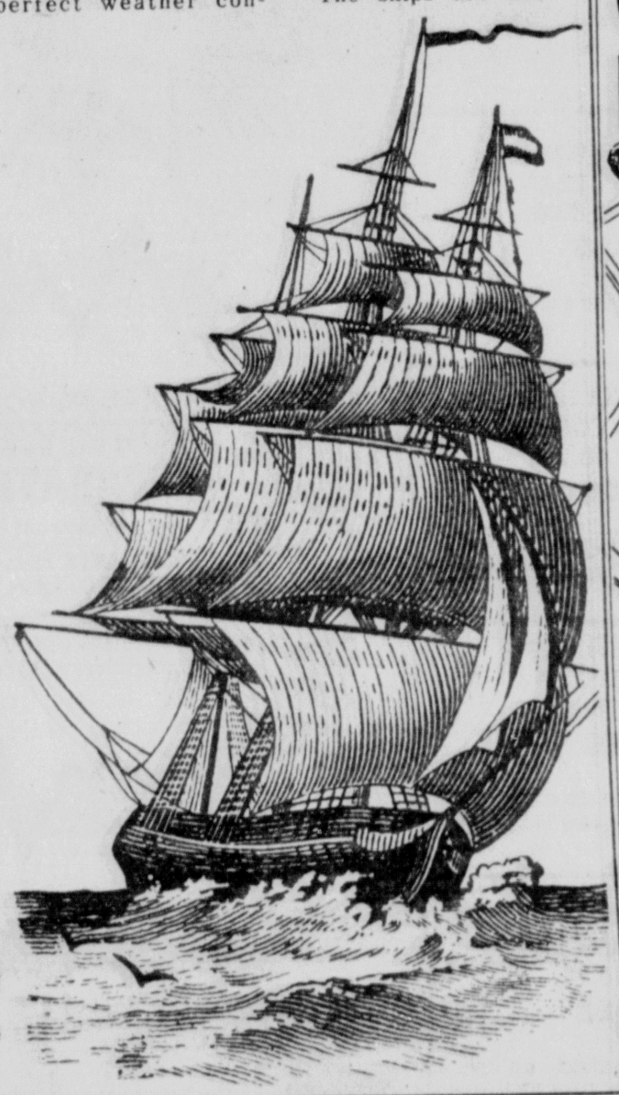

Operation Sail 1976, however involves many more ships and nations than did Operation Sail 1964.

With few exceptions, the "tall ships" belong to navies or merchant marine training schools. Many of the smaller training vessels are affiliated with private schools and youth groups.

The ships are maintained for a variety of reasons — national pride, nostalgia, training in practical seamanship and to develop the character of young people.

The objectives are common to all sail training programs. Today's professional mariner needs more than an understanding of the intricacies of diesel, steam or nuclear propulsion as well as those of modern electronics. He must also have a feel for wind and wave and understand how to take advantage of these elements rather than be taken advantage of by them. The failure to appreciate and understand the ocean's ways can be disastrous for even the largest of modern ships.

More than a spectacle, Operation Sail 1976 is also a reminder of virtues — patience, a willingness to face hardship and danger, self-confidence, self-control and professional competence as essential to sea farers today as they were 200 years ago.

The show opens Oct. 14 and continues through Feb. 6, 1977.

Wide doors for wheelchairs voted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Assembly has voted to require houses built after this year to have doors wide enough to accommodate wheelchairs.

The measure by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, was sent to the Senate Tuesday on a 41-31 vote, the bare minimum for passage.

It would require the doors to be at least 30 inches wide, in accordance with state and federal standards.

Wide doors are already required in public and publicly funded buildings.

Sieroty promised to amend the bill to exempt remodeling of current houses and to restrict the requirement to only one bedroom and bathroom per house.

But Assemblyman Bob Badham, R-Newport Beach, protested that the measure was "ridiculous," adding, "I don't think this is any area for government to intrude in."

It is AB 4450.

Senate okays adult trials for youths 16 and 17

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Senate has approved a bill designed to make it easier to try 16 and 17 year olds as adults for serious crimes.

The measure by Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, cleared the upper house on a 28-1 vote Tuesday after a debate in which Robbins called the state's juvenile justice system a "joke."

"A juvenile is just as likely to spend as much time in detention for murder as he is for truancy," he said.

The measure now goes to the Assembly.

Under the bill, a district attorney could try a 16 or 17 year old charged with one of several violent crimes in adult court unless the court ruled that the case should be handled in the juvenile system.

If the case was tried in adult court, the offender could receive an adult penalty, but he would have to be sent to a juvenile facility until he turned 18, Robbins said.

Currently juveniles are tried in adult court or sent on to state prison only in rare cases, Robbins added. A juvenile court referee now decides if a minor should be tried in adult or juvenile court, he said.

"The basic difference is that adult court is a completely different type of procedure," Robbins said in an interview. "A kid comes before a juvenile court. Let's say it's for murder.

"The hearing is not so much on the question of guilt or innocence but on what type of kid do we have here. If he went to Sunday school maybe they won't put him into any kind of facility.

"The adult court is based much more on crime and punishment," he added. "Let's say they find him guilty of murder and sentence him to five to 10 years. He will go to the California Youth Authority and then be transferred to state prison."

Current law prevents a juvenile from being given the death penalty. Robbins said his bill would not change that.

The bill would apply to 16 or 17 year olds who committed murder, certain types of robbery, and any felony involving serious injury or use of firearms or destructive devices.

The measure would also permit counties to establish a system of conciliation courts to handle juveniles who have committed such minor offenses as truancy or running away from home.

The bill is SB 1598.

Bill would prevent 'sex stereotyping'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — School counselors would have to help students explore careers which aren't traditionally associated with their sex, under a bill passed by the state Assembly.

Assemblyman Floyd Mori, D-Pleasanton, said before the 44-29 vote Tuesday that his measure would help end sex stereotyping.

But it provoked a wide range of criticism. Assembly Republican leader Paul Priolo of Pacific Palisades said the cause of women's rights is being hurt by "all the garbage coming out of your committee (the Joint Committee on Legal Equality) saying this is a non-sexist world."

The bill went to the Senate.

It is AB 3595.

In 1579, Sir Francis Drake landed on the California coast.

In 1943, Allied bombers pounded the Italian city of Naples and the island of Sicily.

In 1967, Communist China announced it had exploded its first hydrogen bomb.

In 1972, the downfall of the Nixon administration began with the discovery of the Watergate break-in in Washington.

Ten years ago: The Food and Drug Administration announced a major overhaul of regulations for special diet foods and diet supplements.

Five years ago: Japan and the United States signed an agreement restoring the once bloody battlefield of Okinawa to the Japanese.

Today's birthdays: Entertainer Dean Martin is 59 years old. Designer Charles Eames is 69.

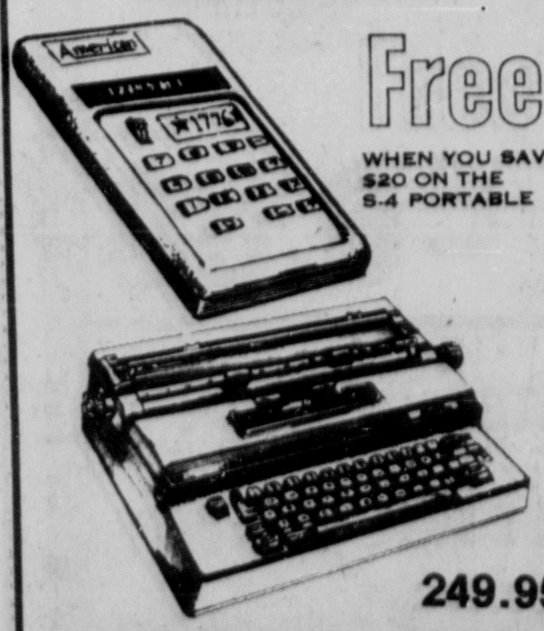

Thought for today: Travel is broadening, particularly where the food and drink are good. But the journey home is an exultant occasion — former New York Times critic Brooks Atkinson.

Bicentennial footnote: 200 years ago today, Congress focused on the critical battle situation in Canada. Connecticut was asked to send two additional battalions and General Gates was directed to take command of the troops, with authority to commission and dismiss officers.

Kuhn investigates Finley's sales

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Miller once asked of the baseball owners' individual and sometimes conflicting ways: "Who's going to protect the owners from themselves?"

It may be Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn, wondering if there might be something rotten in his kingdom, called for a hearing in New York today to discuss Charles O. Finley's sale of three of his top players from the Oakland A's, a sale that brought shrill cries of agony from fans and other club owners alike.

But Kuhn did more than just call together the principles involved. He halted the sale of pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for a reported $1.5 million and the sale of pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million apiece, and kept them on the Oakland roster.

Like it or not, Finley still owns the trio—at the moment. And, by order of the commssioner, he can't use them.

"The Blue-Fingers-Rudi assignments by the Oakland club raise questions that I feel require a hearing," Kuhn said in a teletyped notice to all 24 major league clubs. "Accordingly, I will hold a hearing ... at 2:30 p.m. in this office. The Oakland, New York and Boston clubs and Marvin Miller have been asked to attend." Miller is executive director of the players union.

And the last segment of Kuhn's teletype said: "Pending final determination of what action, if any, I should take, the three players involved will remain on the active list of the Oakland club but may not appear in uniform or participate in Oakland games."

Miller spent part of Wednesday debating issues with John Gaherin, bargaining agent for the owners. A major topic of discussion was Finley's fire sale.

The owners and Gaherin have taken the position voiced by Minnesota Twins boss Calvin Griffith, who said:

"I think it's a terrible thing when two clubs go out and start bidding to see who can buy a championship team. I think this shows that what the owners have been saying about the wealthy clubs getting the top players is true.

"It just shows how necessary a reserve system is if we are going to have fair competition."

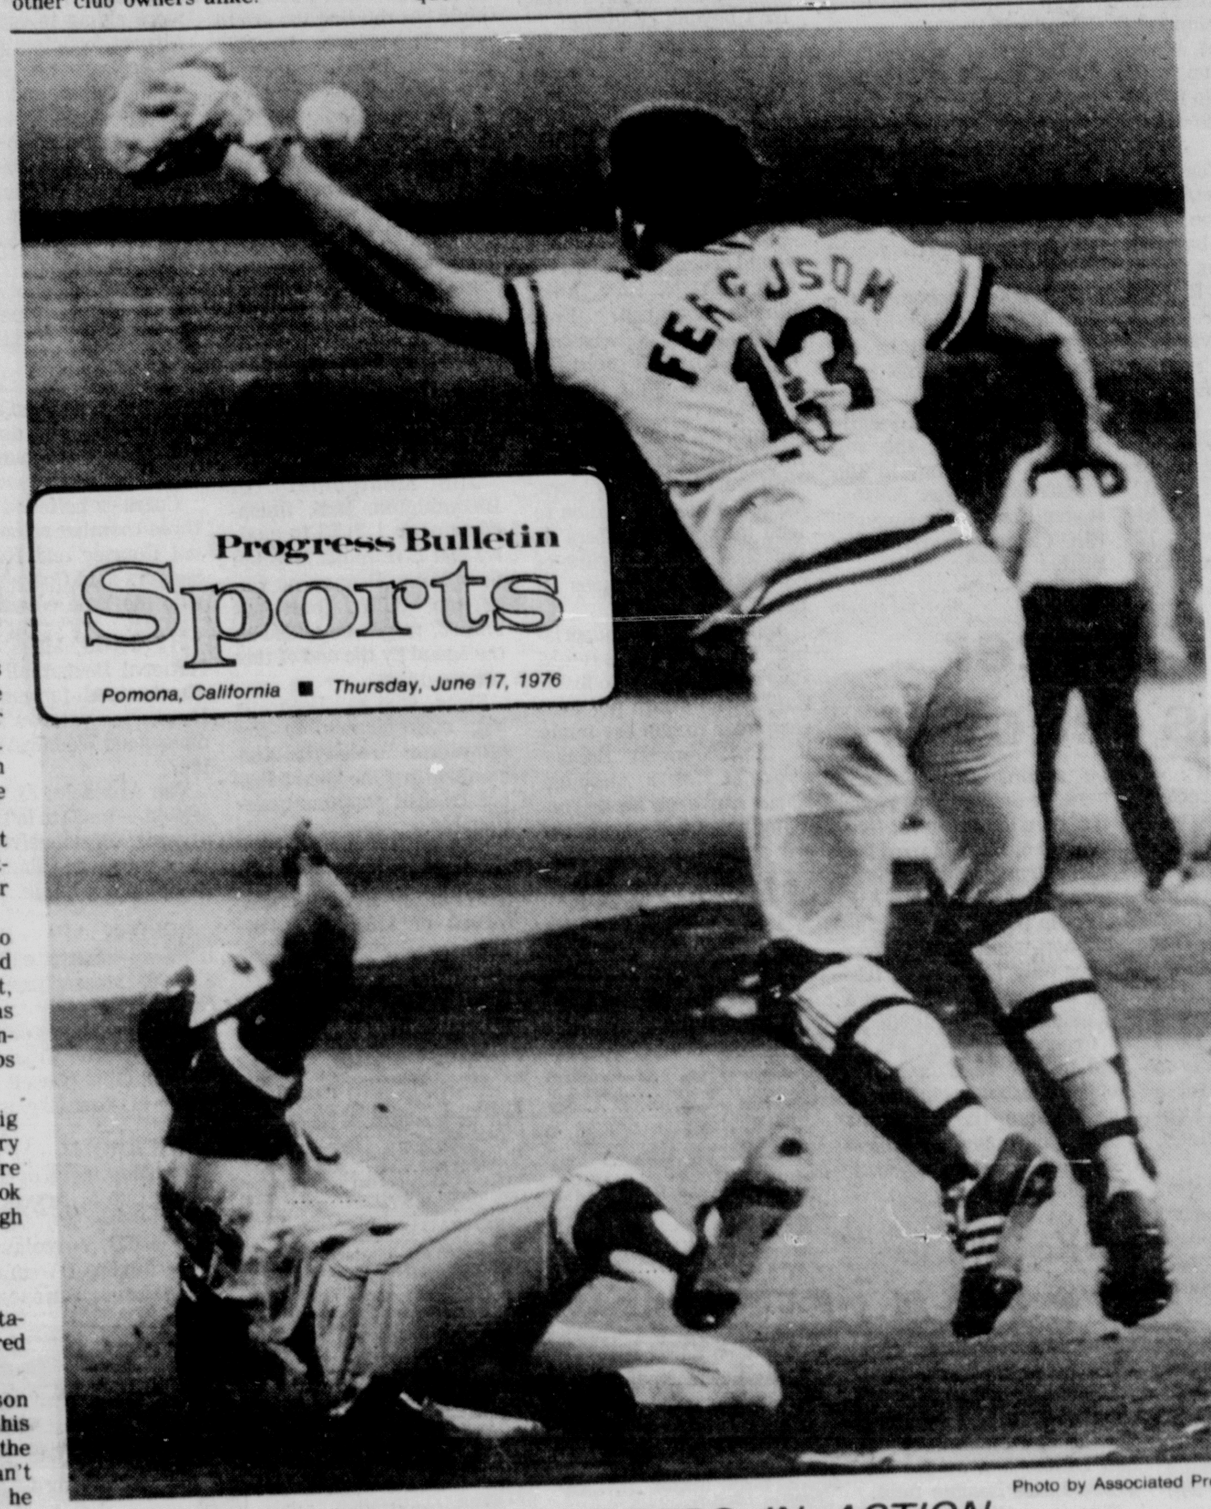

Miller says he doesn't understand what the owners are talking about.

"I'm puzzled. What's so bad for baseball?" Miller asked. "I don't know what it means that they're concerned about balanced competition.

"The Yankees haven't won a pennant in 12 years and the Red Sox haven't won the World Series since 1918."

Miller pointed out that the A's have won the American League West the past five years, Baltimore has won the AL East five of the past seven years, Cincinnati has won the National League West four of the past six years, and Pittsburgh has taken the NL East five of the last six years.

"So that's the great balance they're worried about disturbing," Miller said. "Look what's happening to the competitive balance. Apparently, Oakland will not repeat. But the A's chose to sell their players for cash."

Angel fans suffering

In a moment of frustration, Angels' skipper Dick Williams said, "I think for the benefit of the fans of Orange County, we should make some trades. With the personnel we have now, we're not a first-division club. Some of our players are trying, some aren't and some just aren't capable."

Why limit it to Orange County? The Angel fans in the Pomona are suffering just as much.

It's a sad fact the Angels just don't seem to be making any progress at all and the recent trade deadline ended at midnight Tuesday with the only move being picking up catcher Terry Humphrey and getting rid of outfielder Joe Lahoud.

I don't believe that was what Williams was hoping for. It would be nice to have a few people capable of hitting the ball.

At their current .397 won-loss percentage, the Angels are suffering through their worst record ever with 98 games remaining on the schedule. The team batting average of .230 is one of the lowest in baseball and the Halos are at the bottom in the power department with only 19 home runs. At the current rate, they won't even approach last year's total of 55, the lowest in the majors.

On most nights, the Angels present a lineup with two or three batters hitting below their weight at .200 or lower.

This is a bad year for the Angels to be so inept. Just when the Oakland A's empire has been cracked apart, the Kansas City Royals and Texas Rangers appear like the top contenders. A few years ago, both clubs were as weak as the Angels.

Baseball people predicted big things for the Angels when Harry Dalton came from Baltimore before the 1972 season and Williams took over as manager midway through the 1974 campaign.

No magic yet

Both of them had winning reputations but the magic hasn't appeared at Anaheim Stadium.

This is Dalton's fifth season guiding the Angels and none of his genius has been reflected in the standings yet. While Williams can't be faulted for the lack of talent he must work with, it is distressing to watch his team make one mental mistake after another. The lack of basic fundamentals is unbelievable.

Dalton has a problem. He has little to work with concerning trades. To get somebody of value, you must be able to offer somebody.

Obviously, pitcher Frank Tanana would command a stiff price in any trade talks and Nolan Ryan, Jerry Remy, Bobby Bonds and Dave Chalk are valuable properties. But Dalton is understandably reluctant to part with any of them.

And it's obvious chief owner Gene Autry isn't willing to empty his bank account to purchase high-priced free agents.

Autry had his chance to buy some of the A's Finley recently put on the market but the Angels' owner elected to let the Yankees and Red Sox get even stronger.

If anything, Autry sounds like he is already given up on the 1976 Angels.

When asked about turning down the opportunity of paying a million dollars for outfielder Joe Rudi, Autry was quoted as saying, "I'm not saying he (Rudi) wouldn't be worth it if we were a contender, if we had a chance to finish one-two, but in our situation we can't afford to."

The Angels have been blessed by good fan support. Last year's cellar-dwelling team drew 1,058,163 and the Halos are attracting an average of 14,347 fans per home game this season. Anaheim is friendly, convenient and a fun park.

What do you think the attendance would be if the Angels would actually become a pennant contender?

Hopefully, we'll find out some day. But the future doesn't look promising as long as the Angels pull in the purse strings.

* * *

GEORGE FINGERS OF CUCAMONGA called Wednesday. He was most unhappy about what Finley was saying in the media about his son, Rollie. Charlie called his unsigned players bleep, bleeps.

As you know by now, the former Upland High star was sold to the Boston Red Sox for a cool million.

"Charlie's statements rubbed me the wrong way," the elder Fingers said. "Rollie's contract demands are nothing like it appears to the public. His agent, Jerry Kapstein, presented Finley with three different plans featuring multi-year contracts with a no-cut clause and deferred payments.

Brewers' ace blanks Angels

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — Bill Travers showed the Anaheim Stadium baseball fans why he is leading the American League in earned run average.

The 23-year-old lefthander won his eighth game for the Milwaukee Brewers Wednesday night and lowered his sparkling ERA to 1.59 by pitching a neat three-hit shutout over the Angels in a 9-0 rout.

Of course, hurling a blank over the light-hitting Halos isn't that great of an accomplishment. The way things have gone this season, a starting assignment against the Anaheimers is one of the greatest presents a pitcher may receive.

Travers, using his new fork ball quite a bit, has won six of his last seven games and has finished six of those assignments. Wednesday's shutout was his third of the season.

"The fork ball has been a super pitch for me," Travers said. "I throw it 30 to 40 times a game in any situation. I've got a lot of confidence in it."

Maybe it's just because it was against the Angels but Travers didn't feel he was at his best against the Halos.

"That was probably my worse outing in a month," Travers said after the win. "There were times when I was throwing, not pitching."

But Travers didn't have to work too hard since his teammates banged out 13 hits against two Angel pitchers — starter Sid Monge and reliever Paul Hartzell.

Former Dodger Von Joshua led the hit parade with three singles and a double. Gorman Thomas hit a key two-run homer for the Brewers in the fifth inning to give Travers a 3-0 lead and ageless Henry Aaron added a two-run homer — the 749th of his brilliant career — in the ninth for good measure.

It was the first homer ever for Aaron at Anaheim Stadium and the few fans still present saluted him with a big ovation.

"It makes an old man feel good," laughed the 42-year-old home run king.

Milwaukee scored first in the third frame when Thomas drew a walk, Joshua singled off of Monge and Don Money hit a sacrifice fly.

Thomas' homer highlighted a three-run uprising in the fifth to give Travers all the runs he required for insurance purposes.

The Angels' only real threat came in the bottom of the eighth when Orlando Alvarez singled and Travers walked both Dave Chalk and Andy Etchebarren to load the bases for Bobby Bonds with two outs.

But Travers fanned Bonds on a 3-2 pitch to take care of that.

ANGEL ANGLES — Gary Ross (3-8) will face Milwaukee's Jim Slaton (8-3) tonight to conclude the three-game series. Boston comes in Friday night for a weekend series.

Lee Stanton, who 'led' the Angels last year with 14 home runs, is still looking for his first round tripper of 1976 after 138 at-bats. He is only hitting .188 and has driven in only 13 runs.

The Angels haven't hit a home run at Anaheim Stadium since Bonds belted his grand slammer against the Twins back on May 15. It was also his last homer.

The Angels' shuffle with Salt Lake City continues. Ike Hampton was sent back to Salt Lake Wednesday while Dan Briggs was called up from the Halos' top farm club.

NBA takes four ABA franchises

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — The National Basketball Association decided today to expand by four teams, adding San Antonio, Denver, New York and Indiana from the American Basketball Association.

Each of the four clubs will pay $3.2 million in cash.

Originally, the purchase price for each of the four teams was supposed to be $4.5 million, with $1 million payable the first year and the rest spread over five years. The lower payment now will be due almost immediately.

The addition of the four teams will swell the NBA's membership from 18 to 22 teams for the 1976-77 season.

In choosing to add four ABA clubs, the NBA did not take two ABA franchises—Kentucky and St. Louis, which was to be moved to Utah for the ABA's 1976-77 season.

Owner Abe Pollin of the Washington Bullets, chairman of the NBA's merger committee, announced other conditions of the merger at the NBA's annual meetings here today.

They included:

—The players from the Kentucky and St. Louis-Utah teams would be put into a dispersal draft which would include both NBA and ABA teams. The draft would be held on the basis of each team's 1975-76 record, with the worst team choosing first. Each team will have the opportunity to draft.

—All contracts of ABA players will be honored, according to an agreement reached with the ABA Players Association.

—The ABA will not share in any television revenue for four seasons.

—The ABA will not have a vote on a resolution regarding gate-sharing for the next two seasons. ABA teams will not vote on division alignments for the 1976-77 season.

—ABA rosters will be frozen as of May 1, 1976.

Hough saves Dodger win

NEW YORK (AP) —Five years ago, Charlie Hough was a seemingly washed-up minor league pitcher with a sore arm. Today, he's the star of the Los Angeles Dodger bullpen.

What happened along the way?

"I started throwing a knuckleball," says Hough. "I throw it 80 per cent of the time. The only thing is, you look terrible when you are throwing it bad.

"I have the ball moving really well now. Relief pitching is a streak thing. If you get hot for a month or so, it can make the whole season. Basically, I started throwing the knuckler because of a lack of talent."

That one pitch, though, has earned Hough as much respect as Mike Marshall among Dodger firemen—and Wednesday night he was brought in—not Marshall—to save a 4-1 decision over the New York Mets.

"I've got them both, and I'm going to use them both," said Los Angeles Manager Walt Alston. "Every game is different."

Doug Rau, 6-3, benefited from Hough's fourth save of the year. Rau pitched the first six innings and Hough the last three.

"This is the first time all year that I've had a curve ball," said Rau. "In 1975 I had great control, but this year, I have been walking people. I had to go to off-speed pitches. Even tonight, I did walk a few (three)."

The Dodgers scored four runs in the seventh inning on a two-run single by Bill Russell and a two-run double by Ted Sizemore to sew up the contest and end the Mets' four-game winning streak.

Jerry Koosman, 6-5, blanked the Dodgers on a pair of singles over the first six innings, but was unable to retire a batter in the seventh and was tagged with his fourth consecutive setback.

A bunt single by Steve Garvey got the Dodgers started in the seventh. Singles by Ron Cey and Dusty Baker loaded the bases before Russell singled to give the Dodgers a 2-1 lead.

Skip Lockwood relieved and struck out Steve Yeager but was clipped for a two-run double by Sizemore.

The victory enabled the Dodgers to pick up a game on first-place Cincinnati in the National League West. Los Angeles trails the Reds by three games.

The Mets had men on base in every inning against Rau and at least one hit in each of the first five. They finally put two hits together for a 1-0 lead in the fifth.

Del Unser singled with one out, took second on Koosman's sacrifice and scored on Bud Harrelson's single. Felix Millan followed with a single that sent Harrelson to third and Joe Torre walked, loading the bases. But Dave Kingman struck out for the third time to end the inning.

Bumstead, Johnson get All-CIF honors

Bonita High's Bill Bumstead and Scott Johnson have capped their prep careers by winning all-CIF first team honors.

The Bearcat duo both made the 2A first unit, as announced today by the CIF office and the Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation.

For Bumstead, it was the third straight year he has won all-CIF recognition. He was a first-team pick in 1974 and a second-team selection last year.

He posted a 10-1 mark this season in helping the 'Cats to their third straight Hacienda League title. His lone loss came in the CIF playoffs by a 1-0 score to El Dorado, the team which went on to win the 2A title.

Johnson, a recent pro signee with the Detroit Tigers, was the first-team catcher. He posted a .411 batting average this past season and was even more impressive on defense.

2A Player of the Year award went to Mira Costa pitcher Mike Myerchin. The senior lefty, a mere 5-9 and 150 pounds, was the main ingredient of Mira Costa's second-place finish to El Dorado. He posted a 13-3 season mark, three of those wins coming in 2A playoff action. He lost the 2A finale to the Hawks and fellow first-team hurler Dan Petry by a 2-1 score.

Only other Hacienda League players on the 2A squads were Royal Oak second baseman Whit Gill (second team) and Royal Oak outfielder Dave Ochoa (third team).

Lennox, Sonora and Bosco Tech, with three players apiece picked, paced the balloting. Only returnees other than Bumstead from last year's teams were Pater Noster shortstop Gary D'Onofrio and Brawley outfielder Joe Chacon. Temple City third baseman Mike Becker, a junior, was the lone underclassman on the first team.

See page 24 of today's sports section for a complete list of the 2A selections.

Tremblay finds pleasant surprise among his North All-Star players

Coach Remi Tremblay says he has found a "sleeper" on his North squad for the La Verne Rotary High School Basketball All-Star game, scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at La Verne College.

"James Knight has really turned out to be a sleeper for us," said Tremblay, Bonita High's head basketball coach.

Knight, a recent graduate of Pomona High, is one of the few players among the 24 in the All-Star Game not selected for an all-league team this past season.

"I really didn't know much about him," Tremblay admitted. "But Jack Smith (of Claremont, assistant coach for the North team), Bill Roberts (Damien's coach) and Bob Elder (Chino's coach) all raved about him, so we selected him.

"James was hurt (injured ankle) much of the year, so he didn't have that good a season," continued Tremblay. "But he has looked great in practice. He's really a fine leaper."

A potential problem spot for the North squad is that only two of the 12 players on the roster — Dave Brigante of Claremont and Jamie Eagle of Alta Loma — played the guard position this year.

"We felt that we should take the best athletes available and go with them without worrying about positions," offered Tremblay. "There was just a shortage of good graduating guards in our area this year.

"We're somewhat concerned about the physical matchups because the speed of the South team (with seven guards on its roster) may hurt us, but we have quite a few players capable of bringing the ball down.

"Anthony Vasquez brought the ball down all year whenever Alta Loma was in a tight spot, and Mike Moses (of Charter Oak) can do it, too. Mike Shepherd (of San Dimas) and Mike Wetenkamp (of Damien) can play guard as well."

Those four players were used primarily as forwards during the past basketball season, as were Claremont's Rob Fossum and Damien's Jon Kolodge, two more members of the North team. Bonita's Steve Sly and Royal Oak's Brian Kelly played center.

Tickets are on sale at Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association branch offices, First Federal Savings and Loan Association of San Gabriel Valley branch offices, All Star Sporting Goods in La Verne, The Sportsman in Claremont and at the door.

Majors call Bell, Gross

The love affair between pro ball and Mt. San Antonio College baseball products continues.

One ex-Mountie was promoted to the big leagues and another inked a pro contract. The Chicago White Sox called up third baseman Kevin Bell from their Iowa Oaks farm team, while the St. Louis Cardinals signed infielder Mark Bumstead.

In another development, Cal Poly product Wayne Gross was called up by the Oakland A's to help fill the void created by the sale of Joe Rudi.

Gross, an outfielder, was hitting .337 for the A's top farm club at Tucson, Ariz.

Besides playing baseball at Poly, Gross was also a star punter on the Broncs' football team.

Bell will fill the vacancy on the Chisox roster created when catcher Pat Varney was sent to the Atlanta Braves. The 20-year-old product of Edgewood High and MSAC was hitting .285 in 51 games at Iowa, with 12 doubles, four home runs and 24 runs batted in.

The power-hitting third sacker was an outstanding performer on the 1974 edition of the Mounties.

Bumstead, a teammate of Bell on that 1974 club, signed a pro contract with the Cardinals following two seasons as a starter on the Cal State Northridge team. Prior to two years at MSAC, Bumstead was a prep standout locally at Bonita High.

Bumstead was sent to the Cards' St. Petersburg, minor league camp for assignment. Scouting supervisor David Bartosh signed the ex-Mountie to a St. Louis contract after the Cards had selected him on the 28th round in the recent pro draft.

Bumstead becomes the 28th MSAC product to sign a pro contract since Art Mazmanian became head coach in 1969. Bell becomes the sixth Mountie to make it to the big leagues, following in the footsteps of Roger Nelson, Roger Freed, Joe Keough, Bill Campbell and Doug Bird.

Tom Purtzer shares lead

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — Tom Purtzer, the rookie from Arizona State who held leads in each of the last two tour events, moved into a share of the lead early in today's opening round of the 76th U.S. Open Golf Championship.

Purtzer recorded a birdie on the tough opening hole, quickly lost it at No. 2 and then parred his way to make the turn at 35 for a share of the lead with Dennis Tiziani of Madison, Wis.

George Glenn of Wichita, Kan., found the course tougher than advertised. He managed to get through the first four holes, said to be among the toughest here, in only two-over-par. But then he took a fat five-over 10 on the 540-yard No. 5 and struggled through the turn with a 10-over-par 45.

Irwin ran into early trouble and went to three-over after only four holes, taking a bogey at No. 2 and a double-bogey five at No. 3.

Crenshaw appeared to be rolling toward a solid opening-ground score when he birdied the first six holes, but then took consecutive bogeys on Nos. 7 and 8.

Mangsurin risks title

MADRID (AP) — Saensak Mangsurin of Thailand, the World Boxing Council's lightweight champion, will defend his title against Spain's Miguel Velazquez in Madrid's Las Ventas bullring June 30.

Mangsurin was to receive $80,000 to defend the crown he took from Spain's Pedro "Perico" Fernandez in Bangkok last July 15.

Signups will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Boys and girls ages 7-16 are eligible to participate. Signup fee is $12 per youth and $20 for two. Interested youths are requested to bring a birth certificate.

AYSO play will begin in September.

Women aim at marks

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Two American women have taken dead aim on swimming records established by the East Germans and the U.S. Olympic trials forecast a torrid competition at Montreal in the Olympian.

As expected, Shirley Babashoff qualified easily for her second Olympic Games and she also proved that the 1:59.78 world record by East Germany's Kornelia Ender at that Communist nation's trials isn't beyond challenge.

The 19-year-old Miss Babashoff, from Mission Viejo, Calif., got off to a slow start but then posted a 2:00.69 to lower her own American record and prove she can challenge the East Germans.

"I think it will take a world record to win at Montreal," the lanky blonde declared. "Four years ago I was just swimming. Now I mentally know more what I'm doing."

America's Bruce Furniss and John Hencken, both world record holders, turned in notable times to lead the men qualifiers on the first of six nights of competition for places on the U.S. team.

And there was a surprising lass — 19-year-old Lauri Siering of Modesto, Calif., who swam her best race ever to win the trials in the 200-meter breaststroke at 2:38.75. Although Karla Linke of East Germany holds the world record at 2:34.99, Miss Siering said she hopes to lower her time by six seconds.

"I was pleased with the race and pleased with qualifying for the team, but I wasn't pleased with my time," said the Californian who four years ago wasn't speedy enough to reach the Olympic trials.

Marcia Morey of Mission Viejo, Calif., took the second team spot in the 200 breaststroke and 15-year-old Jill Sterkel of El Monte, Calif., surprised with a second-place finish in the freestyle at 2:02.93.

There were three qualifiers in the men's 200 freestyle but missing the group was Tim Shaw, the 1975 Sullivan Award winner as the outstanding American amateur athlete. He finished fifth in 1:52.36.

Furniss, who holds the world record at 1:50.32, posted a 1:50.61 to lead the qualifiers. John Naber, a teammate of Furniss on the University of Southern California swim team, surprised himself by finishing second in 1:51.12. Naber ranks as the outstanding U.S. backstroke swimmer but this was his best in the freestyle.

Jim Montgomery of Bloomington, Ind., finished third in 1:51.52 to qualify and it remains possible that Mike Bruner of Cupertino, Calif., fourth at 1:51.93, might be added to the squad by the end of this six-day meet.

Shaw, who has been ailing, concentrates on the 400-meter freestyle and also will try the sprint 100, but he still remains questionable.

Noteworthy, in the 200, each of the eight qualifiers bettered the Olympics trial record of 1:53.58 set by Mark Spitz in 1972 when he won a record seven gold medals at Munich, Germany. And the men swimmers did the same thing in the finals — the slowest being Steve Furniss, the winner's brother at 1:53.48.

In the men's breaststroke, Rick Colella of Kirkland, Wash., finished second to qualify for the Olympic team which will number 27 men and 24 women at the end of these trials on Monday.

Sports briefs

MOHAVE, Calif. (AP) — A pilot scheduled to race in the Fourth Annual California National Air Races and his passenger were killed Wednesday when the plane they were riding in crashed on its final approach at Mohave Airport, officials said.

Ken Burnstine, Balboa Island, Calif., an import-export businessman, and an unidentified passenger were headed for the races, scheduled this weekend at the airport.

A spokesman for the racing group said Burnstine was approaching the landing strip at a 45 degree angle when an apparent malfunction caused the craft, a P-51 Mustang in which Burnstine won the 1974 air racing championships at Reno, to crash to the ground. The two bodies were shattered on impact.

The Kern County coroner's office in Bakersfield said the bodies are being held pending identification and notification of next of kin.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Yale University's president has scheduled a Friday news conference to announce the new athletic director for the Ivy League institution. Speculation is mounting the job will go to Carmen Cozza, Yale's football coach.

Cozza is believed to have been the first choice of the three-member selection committee, the New Haven Journal Courier and Register reported Tuesday. The newspapers said Cozza was the only one considered from inside the Yale community.

HYANNIS, Mass (AP) — The Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association have traded guard Ken Charles and forward-guard Dick Gibbs to the Atlanta Hawks for veteran swingman Tom Van Arsdale, it was announced Wednesday during the league's summer meeting.

Van Ardsdale, 33, played 75 games for the Hawks last season — his 11th in the league — and averaged 10.9 points a game. Previously he played with Detroit, Cincinnati, Kansas City and Philadelphia and had a career average of 16.7 points a game.

BOSTON (AP) — Royal Glint, 19th in the all-time list of money winners, will start in the 42nd running of the $100,000 Massachusetts Handicap on Sunday at Suffolk Downs.

The 6-year-old gelding, owned by Dan Lasater, will be ridden by Jose Tejeira.

Royal Glint passed up the $75,000 Hazel Park Handicap to run in New England's richest race.

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sweden defeated Norway 2-0 Wednesday night in the qualifying tourney for the World Soccer Cup at Argentina in 1978.

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — Czechoslovakia beat the Netherlands 3-1 Wednesday in a semifinal soccer match of the Cup of European Nations.

Kicking around

With Adrian Mercado and Willie Keo

SATURDAY BOTH THE L.A. Aztecs and the L.A. Skyhawks will be playing at home. The Aztecs will face the Tampa Bay Rowdies with colorful and effective Rodney Marsh, and the Skyhawks face the Golden Bay Buccaneers. Both games start at 7:30 p.m. and it is most unfortunate that this conflict in scheduling could not have been resolved (acknowledged might be a better term) before the schedules were finalized. Competition and rivalry adds spice to the stew when two pro teams share the same geographical marketing area, but when the fan's welfare takes a secondary role such conflicts become destructive.

THE AZTECS will be trying for their 11th straight home win against Tampa, a team that in our opinion is stronger than the local's last two opponents, Vancouver and Portland.

Last Saturday's game against Vancouver was a kicking contest that at times deteriorated into a fouling contest. Neither team played as well as past performances and the few well-executed combinations were spread out sparsely.

The Aztec goals came by way of a cross from right wing by right fullback Bernie Fagan that was received by George Best . . . who drew three defenders to him before floating an easy pass to the waiting Ron Davies for an easy header to the left of goalie Phil Parkes.

The Whitecaps tied the game in the second half when Glen Johnson outflanked the locals' left fullback Malcolm Linton and crossed for Billy Woof who headed the ball into the net. The winning goal was scored by Best on a 20 yard free kick that literally split the "wall" of defenders and went into the net.

THE L.A. SKYHAWKS have returned from their Eastern swing with one win, one tie, and one defeat. These results are very good considering that the Skyhawks are a new franchise and the eastern clubs have been in business for a longer time. With the 1-0 victory over the ASL defending champions, the New York Apollos, the Skyhawks became the first Western Division team to win in the East. The Skyhawks are currently leading the Western Division with a won-tie-loss record of 5-2-4 and are playing very exciting soccer.

CHAFFEY COLLEGE SOCCER MENTOR Frits Rosenveldt is stepping down to pursue other soccer-related activities. His place will be filled by Seiran Stepanian who brought his Chaffey High School team close to a CIF Championship last season and captured third place honors in the competition.

All players interested in playing for the Chaffey Panther's college team should call 983-8902 or 987-1737 for further information.

THE AYSO COACHES SCHOOL held its first of three sessions last weekend at Cal State Northridge and was attended by 102 coaches. The two day affair covered all aspects of youth coaching from psychology to new theories about taking in liquids during a game. Session 2 will be held at University of Santa Barbara on July 9-11, and Session 3, August 20-22 at the University of California Santa Cruz. All interested parties should contact their Regional Commissioners for further information.

THE FAR WEST SOCCER SCHOOL will be holding youth clinics in Cucamonga and La Verne. The instructors will be: Al Mistri, soccer coach at Damien High; Dave Goldstein, Pomona High soccer coach; Bob Lamb, referee and All-West NAIA player from Claremont Men's College; Bart Sullivan, former All — CIF soccer player, and John Evans. Rick Davis and Mike Hunter, current Damien seniors, will serve as aides. The first session will be August 2-7; Session 2, August 9-14; Session 3, August 16-20; Session 4, August 23-27. A $40 registration fee will cover six days of instruction. For more information write: Far West Soccer Day Camp, P.O. Box 922, San Gabriel, Ca. 91766.

SOCCER IN THE U.S.A. IS ADDING more fans with each week's play. The recent Bicentennial Cup series sparked crowds of 32,000 in L.A., 40,000 in Yankee Stadium, 40,000 at Yale Bowl (shades of Albie Booth!), and NASL league matches this season has seen a 42,000 gathering at Tampa and last week a record league attendance for the new Minnesota Kicks when 46,000-plus turned the stiles . . . and in most cases with the catalyst being Pele as it was for the 58,000 drawn to Seattle's new Kingdome opening earlier . . . the all-time U.S. record soccer crowd.

San Jose was first in selling the game to fans and Seattle followed quickly and both are now being outdrawn by the Portland team because they are filling their 33,000 stadium fairly regularly. To the East it is Tampa who is creating new fans and in large numbers, due to a strong team lineup and English star Rodney Marsh.

The first star of magnitude (who is at peak at time of signing) is the Cosmos' Giorgio Chinaglia (Key-NAL-yuh) . . . who displayed his wares to great effect on TV last

Arizona foes clash again

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The rematch everybody wanted in the College World Series comes tonight.

"We definitely believe in the law of averages and think it will come into play tomorrow night," said Arizona Coach Jerry Kindall after his team remained alive Wednesday night in the series.

Second-ranked Arizona, a loser in the first-round to Arizona State, meets the top-ranked Sun Devils for the right to play Eastern Michigan for championship Friday night.

Arizona, 54-17, outslugged Eastern Michigan 11-6 Wednesday night to stay in contention, while Arizona State eliminated Maine 7-0.

That left the nation's top three rated teams with one loss in the double-elimination tournament. Eastern Michigan received a bye into the finals by winning its first three games.

"We feel like mountain climbers but the task is far from over," added Kindall after his team won its third straight series game.

Arizona and Arizona State, 65-9, have met seven times this season and Kindall's club has lost all seven, including 7-6 in 10 innings in the series last Saturday.

"I think if our club was going to be hurt by that first ASU loss — which was the most disappointing and frustrating defeat it could suffer — it would have been in the next games," continued Kindall.

"But you've seen the way they have responded — three straight victories. So we're ready for them again."

Arizona Coach Jim Brock has suspected all week that his team would be tangling with Arizona State again.

"By our figuring we thought they would be around by Thursday and we knew we'd have to play again. At this point, it's tough no matter who it is."

Brock will send Don Hanna, 15-0, against Steve Powers, who was the Arizona hitting spark against Eastern Michigan.

In three previous series games, Eastern Michigan pitchers had allowed only 19 hits and four earned runs. Arizona, however, pounded out 11 hits including two long home runs.

LL series scheduled

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — The 30th annual Little League Baseball World Series will get under way here Aug. 24 with Canada meeting Latin America in the United States and the U.S. East taking on the U.S. West.

In the other two first-round games, the U.S. South will play the U.S. Central and the Far East will be paired against Europe Aug. 25.

The semifinals are scheduled Aug. 26 with the consolation and World Championship games Aug. 28.

The Little League headquarters here said Monday the pairings were made on two levels — International and United States — to assure that a foreign team will play an American squad in the title game.

The 1976 series marks a return to series competition by foreign teams after a year's absence. The foreign teams were readmitted by a 12-1 vote of the Little League board last December.

Last year when the series was limited to four American teams, Lakewood, N.J., won the title. In five of the six series from 1969 through 1974, teams from Taiwan won the world title.

The drawing of the pairings inaugurated Little League Baseball Week in more than 30 nations.

Glendora still atop Big League standings

Glendora stayed atop the District 20 Big League standings Wednesday with a hard-fought 7-5 win over the Pomona American Bills Tree Stervice squad.

Other Big League results saw the Ted Greene Elks nip Pomona National 8-7, Pomona American First Federal Savings edge Diamond Bar No. 1 10-9 and Diamond Bar No. 2 down Pomona Southwest 3-1.

Glendora built up a big 6-0 lead after two innings and held off Bills Tree Service for the victory. Glendora is now 10-2 in league, while Bills is 3-6. Key hit for Glendora was a three-run homer by Bill Rogers in the first off American hurler Ken Gendreau.

Jim Saige had a single and two walks and scored two of the American runs, while Lucas Martinez had two hits and Paul Sharkey an RBI pinch-hit single in a losing cause.

Ted Greene rallied for three runs in the last of the sixth to nip National/Bit O Sweden. Mark Soto's single to center brought in the tieing and winning runs.

The Elks are now 6-7 in league. Bret Reinhard, Kevin Johnson and Tim Lambert all had three hits for the winners. Lambert picking up the victory on the hill. Larry Burke slugged a home run for National, while teammate Brian Donahue added a triple.

American's Pomona First Federal squad ran its record to 8-5 with the narrow win over the Diamond Bar No. 1 team. Marty Seville, aided by some nifty relief work by Art Escoto, picked up the mound triumph.

Larry Acosta got PFF going in the first with a bad-bounce home run, scoring Jim Thomaston ahead of him. Key singles by Randy Akers, Ed Lee, John Eldridge and Thomaston helped PFF take a big 10-1 lead in the fifth.

Four hits and three PFF errors got Diamond Bar close in the last of the fifth, but Escoto came on to silence the D.B. bats with two innings of hitless relief.

The Diamond Bar No. 2 team could account for only two hits off Southwest southpaw Mike Ramos, but scored three unearned runs to down the Pomona team 3-1. The lone Southwest tally came in the last of the seventh on an error, Louie Cerda's single and a double play. The loss dropped Southwest record to 2-8.

Pomona Southwest travels to Glendora and Diamond Bar No. 1 plays Pomona National at Ralph Welch Park in doubleheader slated for Saturday at 5 p.m. Diamond Bar No. 2 hosts American/PFF Sunday and American/Bills Tree Service will entertain Ted Green/Elks at Simons Jr. High. Those two twinbills will begin at 1 p.m.

Giants sign college star

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — Joe Strain, shortstop for the University of Northern Colorado, has signed a free-agent contract with the San Francisco Giants and has been assigned to the Giants' team complex at Casa Grande, Ariz.

He will be assigned to a minor league team later, a spokesman said.

Post 30 scores win over Upland

Pomona Post 30 won a non-league outing by a 6-1 score over Upland Wednesday night, but Montclair dropped a 6-5 decision to Tri-City in a District 25 league contest.

Post 30 upped its season record to 13-4 with the victory over host Upland Post 73. Gem pitchers Dean Fritchle and Joe Jones combined to fire a five-hitter and fan 11 Upland batters. The lone Post 73 score was unearned.

Pomona touched up Upland hurlers Gary Carr and Wade Lichti for 10 hits. Dale Coleman had three of those, while Mike Keegan chipped in with two.

The Montclair Pizza Palace nine fell just short of Tri-City and hurler Mike Walters. Walters, a Chaffey College performer, had to hold off a last-ditch Montclair rally in the seventh by fanning Darrin Pierce for the final out with the tieing run in scoring position.

Don Pierce was tagged with the loss, surrendering 14 hits. Dave Silva had a single, double and triple for Tri-City, while teammate Anthony Vasquez and Walters also had three hits apiece.

Hurler Pierce had three hits of his own, and Kent Gurney added two more to the 10-hit Pizza Palace attack.

Montclair is now 1-3 in District 25 outings and 4-5 on the year. Tri-City is now 3-2 in District 25 games.

Pomona and Upland will go at it again tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Ralph Welch Park in the lone Legion contest on tap. Randy Babineau will get the starting call for the Gems.

A full slate of Legion games is on tap for Saturday, with Post 30 meeting Covina, Claremont Post 78 traveling to Montclair and La Verne Post 330 hosting El Monte in a District 18 showdown.

Quotes

"The season starts too early and finishes too late and there are too many games in between." — Bill Veeck, president of the Chicago White Sox on why baseball schedules and divisions should be rearranged.

Saturday nite with his Jimmy Greaves style of attack. Chinaglia has an American wife and home in New Jersey and gave notice to his Lazio club (of Rome) that he was heading for the States. If he didn't join the Cosmos by a specified date the Lazio management would not get the $160,000 fee . . . so Giorgio departed Rome as his club was about to be relegated into the Italian 2nd Division. Fortunately for Chinaglia, Lazio managed to finish 13th in the 16-team league, and escaped demotion as the 14th, 15th and 16th placers (Ascoli, Como and Cagliara) lost 1st Division status.

FOR THE FIRST TIME since their tragic air crash at Superga 27 years ago when the entire team was killed, Torino has won the Italian championship . . . and they had won six times prior to the crash with a superb team which included the legendary Valentin Mazzola (whose son Sandor replaced the legend with a world cup career and peak years at San Sir in Milan).

IN SCOTLAND the Glasgow Rangers won everything . . . the league and cup . . . in the new select Premier Division. Their ageless opponents, the Celtics, couldn't bring it off this year but it was the Celtics who were the first British club to attain success outside of Britain when they showed their talents in the European Cup competition and won the right to dispute the World Club title vs. Racing, the Western Hemisphere club champs, in a stormy series that put the Intercontinental cup on a shaky basis from which it has never recovered. Subsequent European champs have declined to go to South America to decide the world title, namely Bayern Munich, now three times running the European holders. Strangely, Bayern recently lost a 1-0 thriller to Fluminense in Rio against Rivelino and Co. but in the strangest way . . . an auto-goal by the world's finest goal-scorer Gerd Muller who was assisting on defense and accidently played one past his own surprised tender, Sepp Maier . . . to give Flu the game. A long way to go to give the game away.

Argentina's most effective player in the 1974 World Cup in Germany was midfielder Carlos Babington who was immediately bought by Wattenscheid of Germany's 2nd Division. This year Wattenscheid finished in 8th place in the North sector of the 2nd Division but Babington played well enough to get a good offer from Valencia of Spain's top league. The Argentine problem is still ahead with the 1978 World Cup set for several Argentine cities.

The political situation is but one obstacle to planning. The main team problem is that the fine Argentine players are bought by clubs from all over the world and are never available to play for Argentina in Cup time and cannot do the training necessary for proper teamwork with each other. Argentina always leads in exportation of pro players because the local clubs are so in need of cash money to carry on the operation. Most of the Argentines play with high-paying teams in Spain or France or Portugal or in twilight years go off to Mexican clubs.

Little Frisbee a big thing in this town

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — Jon Davis is a big man with big ideas about little things.

Here in the heart of Copper Country in Michigan's Upper Peninsula they call Davis "the Frisbee King." A portion of the small plastic disc has even been named in his honor, or so he says.

"The inside ridge of a Frisbee is known as 'The Ditch of Davis' to the real Frisbee heavies," Davis says with a chuckle and a wink.

The 39-year-old son of a downstate circuit court judge came to this picturesque college town to attend Michigan Technological University but decided innkeeping suited his skills more than mechanical engineering.

He bought an old two-story tavern across from the Mining Gazette known as the Board of Trade & Palm Gardens Cafe. He promptly renamed it The Library and has been here ever since.

These days — in addition to overseeing the popular watering hole — he also serves as president of the Chamber of Commerce, cohosts a weekly radio talk show and is the driving force behind a Frisbee tournament that brings thousands flocking to the shores of Lake Superior every summer.

The 19th Annual International Frisbee Tournament, July 17 through 18, will be fun to watch, but it's no game for gramps and the kids on a family picnic.

"They call it 'Guts Frisbee,' and it's just what the name implies," Davis says. "Two fiveman teams stand 15 yards apart and throw as hard as they can at one another.

"The object is to throw so hard the other team can't catch it in one hand cleanly."

Speeds of 90 m.p.h. have been clocked in guts Frisbee, Davis says.

The first Frisbee tournament in the Upper Peninsula was at Escanaba in 1958 but moved just north of here to Eagle Harbor, on the tip of the Keweenaw Peninsula, in 1969.

"Somehow it got too big," Davis says. "By about 1970 or 1971 they had rules. There are still some purists who claim it should be played with a can of beer in one hand and no practicing."

Davis counts himself among the purists, although he cannot deny he is pleased that last year's tournament drew 64 teams from around the country and thousands of fans, who left behind considerable amounts of money — all very good for the economy.

Davis invited a team from China to attend in 1971. They declined.

The winning team gets its name inscribed on the base of a cup made from a couple of tin cans with a pair of handcuffs mounted on top.

"The cup contains a penny, so nobody can say it's worthless," he says. "Sometimes it (the cup) disappears — handcuffs and all."

Davis' tournament, which is sanctioned by the International Frisbee Association, is a prelude to the World Frisbee Tournament, which is held in California later in the year.

The defending champions are a team from Rochester, Mich., known as the Air Aces. Others opt for more exotic names. The affair was won one year, for instance, by a team calling itself the Humbley Magnificent Champions of the Universe from Ann Arbor.

"In the early days, many of the teams were from Berkeley, fun places like that," Davis says. "Now they come from all over."

But why here?

"The thimbleberry blossom, plus the air off Lake Superior, makes the Frisbee fly truer — and farther," he says. "Simple as that."

Apparently the event has been blessed with fair weather, as well, a fact that doesn't go undocumented by Davis.

"Thor Anderson claims responsibility for the weather," Davis says. "Thor's an inspector for the Labor Department in Gary, Ind.

"You can laugh, but it only rained the year Thor missed the tournament."

So it will probably be clear skies and good air this summer when Davis once again dons the purple, white and orange tie-died caftan he wears once a year — prior to the finals.

"I don't make a speech or anything," he says. "The crazy outfit was given to me by a group from Boston and it's kind of a part of Frisbee now."

Davis, too, is a part of Frisbee now — although only a shadow of his former self.

On April 2, 1974, he joined Weight Watchers after heaving his 6-foot-1 frame onto the scales and registering 359 pounds. Today he is a svelt 230 and his waist has gone from 58 inches to 37.

"I have an unquenchable thirst," he says, "so now I only drink water — about a six-pack a day."

Commuter train start postponed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The additional AMTRAK commuter train between San Diego and Los Angeles has been postponed at least until September, an AMTRAK spokesman said.

The run was to have started Tuesday, but the San Diego County Board of Supervisors did not approve the project in time to meet the June 15 starting date, the spokesman said.

The additional commuter run is a joint experiment by San Diego, Orange and Los Angeles counties. San Diego had vetoed the project, but the board narrowly reversed that decision last month.

Unique store gives southpaws a hand

ANAHEIM (AP) — The nation's southpaws ought to give Sue Alpert a hand.

Ms. Alpert, as she prefers to be known, runs a mail-order firm called The Left Handed Complement here that supplies such items as left-handed mustache cups, cameras and boomerangs to the estimated 15-20 per cent of the population that is sinistral, or left-handed.

It was a problem familiar to that minority—the aches caused by an uncomfortable desk—that led the mother of two to found her company, now two years old. She inadvertanely had taken a left-hander's desk at the start of a three-hour psychology exam.

"It suddenly dawned on me," she says, "if I'm this uncomfortable in a three-hour class, how must lefties feel going through their whole lives? Then I watched my husband, who is left-handed, and saw what he had to overcome, what things annoyed him the most."

The upshot of this close-up study was Ms. Albert's company, started in her home with 15 items and now selling more than 125 products nationwide, including sinistral coffee pots, scissors (the biggest seller), can openers and potato peelers. There are also left-handed notebooks, ambidextrous ice cream scoops and, in what may be an effort to raise southpaws' consciousness, a long-playing record of a Ravel concerto described in the catalog as "an exceptionally dramatic work, played solely by the Left Hand."

Developing new products takes a lot of effort, according to the right-handed entrepreneuer, who had a hard time with manufacturers when she started.

"Most large manufacturers said 'the heck with it,' we have a market for our items and lefties will use them anyway," she says, "A lot of them literally laughed in my face. But now they're coming to us."

Ms. Alpert's wares also benefit those forced to become southpaws.

"One of the serious aspects of my business is when I encounter stroke victims who were formerly right-handers and are now paralyzed or palsy victims for whom our products make life that much easier," she says.

Ms. Alpert's business has expanded enough for her to take on an assistant, who probably is not called her "right hand woman," and to relocate to a larger office with warehouse space.

The sinistral business is pretty seasonal, Ms. Alpert reports, with a lot of orders coming around Christmas when people buy her products because "they're unique gift items... when you're left-handed and you get one, you know it's specifically for you."

Ms. Alpert says there are one or two other mail-order firms with left-handed products and concedes that she doesn't expect to retire on her profits. But she adds that she gets a lot of satisfaction from providing items that are right, so to speak, for left-handers.

Spiritual art states theme

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — To reinforce the spiritual themes of the 41st International Eucharistic Congress which convenes here Aug. 1-8, an exhibition of liturgical arts at the Philadelphia Civic Center will feature some 300 paintings, sculptures, drawings and crafts by 200 contemporary artists including internationally known painters Lee Krasner and Philip Pearlstein.

Senate rejects bill for fuel average

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Senate doesn't think it's a good idea to require state vehicles to meet minimum fuel mileage requirements.

It rejected a bill Tuesday by Sen. Jerome Smith, D-Saratoga, to require a "fleet-weighted average" consumption figure on state passenger cars of 20 miles a gallon during 1977, increasing to 22 in 1978 and possibly even more later.

Smith said it would take four years to renew the fleet, but the savings in fuel alone would be $300,000 the first year, $600,000 the second, $900,000 the third, and $1.2 million the fourth.

The vote was 18-14, with 21 votes required for passage. But Smith won permission for another vote later.

It is SB 1672.

Barrel of oil

A barrel of oil equals 42 gallons. The measure stems from the 19th century when oil was carried in wooden, 50-gallon barrels that leaked an average of eight gallons during shipment and storage.

Communists win Thai victory as Malay troops leave Betong

BETONG, Thailand (AP) — Without firing a shot in anger, without suffering a single casualty, Communist rebels have won one of their biggest victories in the post-Indochina war period, according to officials and Western diplomats in Thailand.

They said the losers are Malaysia and Thailand.

Their assessment followed the withdrawal on June 6 from Betong of a Malaysian military force which fought about 3,000 Malaysian Communist insurgents in the jungles along the Thai-Malaysian border.

The withdrawal order came from Bangkok, Thailand's capital, but officials here claim it was cleverly engineered by the Communists who in effect control Betong — dubbed by some as "the Peking of Thailand" and the district's 35,000 inhabitants.

Home Minister Ghazali Shafie of Malaysia has expressed fears that if Thailand fails to effectively fill the vacuum left by the departing 400-man unit, the Communists would completely dominate the area and threaten Malaysia from a "safe base" on the Malay Peninsula.

Given Thailand's hitherto live-and-let-live attitude toward the insurgents, who are generally fighting against Malaysia, Shafie's fears appear well-founded, Western analysts in Bangkok say. They add that it was Malaysia which provided the effective half of the anti-Communist team in the rough border region in southern Thailand.

The Thais claim they already have sent fresh troops to the area.

Two days after the Malaysian withdrawal, Communist rebels attacked a police station in the Prasaeng district of Surat Thani Province, about 250 miles north of Betong. The rebels routed 15 policemen, seized weapons and field radios, then set the police station afire.

The analysts in Bangkok also say that the Malaysian-Thai controversy — which has rapidly soured normally friendly relations between the two countries — also does not bode well for the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — ASEAN — of which Malaysia and Thailand are members. The regional grouping, which also includes Indonesia, the Philippines and Singapore, hopes to ward off the dangers of internal and possibly external Communist aggression through political and economic cooperation.

A Malaysian bombing last month, reportedly directed against insurgent positions near Betong, and charges that the Malaysian troops were extorting money and robbing local people led to demonstrations by Betong residents demanding the withdrawal of the Malaysian forces.

The Bangkok government, apparently bowing to the pressure, ordered the Malaysian troops withdrawal and scrapped a 12-year-old joint border security treaty.

Malaysia denied the criminal allegations and said the demonstrations were Communist-inspired. There have also been continuing allegations by officials in Malaysia that Bangkok purposely is holding back in fighting the Communists in the border region. The allegations maintain that the Thais want an ace in the hole to use against Malaysia, which it says turns a blind eye to elements aiding Moslem secessionists in southern Thailand.

Further complicating and muddying the border issue is the large-scale smuggling of goods across the border which official sources here say both some local Thai and Malaysian military and civilian authorities were heavily engaged in.

A high-ranking Thai police official here supported the Malaysian contention that the Thai withdrawal order stemmed from a Communist ruse.

The official view from Bangkok about the border situation is optimistic.

"We've sent fresh troops to fill the power vacuum created by the withdrawal of the Malaysian forces," Foreign Minister Bhichai Rattakul said after the Malaysian pullout.

Sutherland Brothers

Band hits new note

By STEPHEN FORD

A band with lesser tenacity would have broken up years ago. But the Sutherland Brothers and backup band Quiver share the sort of confidence in their abilities that creates a resiliency now beginning to pay off.

Improving the fortunes of the Manchester quartet and thus intensifying their determination, is their switch from Britain's "Island" record label to Columbia.

That, and a change of management during the summer has unleashed SB&Q in the United States with its first serious chance at cracking an audience hardly aware of their admirable variation of the Buffalo Springfield sound.

Just finishing up a tour of the States as an opening act, the Sutherland boys were around just long enough to see their single "Arms of Mary," from their "Reach For the Sky" album break open coast-to-coast.

"It was a particularly satisfying accomplishment," claims Iain Sutherland, younger of the two brothers. "The main reason we left Island was because they wouldn't distribute singles from our albums in the United States. Singles are important from more than a commercial perspective," he continued. "They act as an invitation and entice a listener to want the whole album after just a small taste."

America's small taste of the Sutherland Brothers & Quiver has been a good deal more palatable than the bitter one the band has suffered. Iain explains that before their American tour, the band had just come from a two month tour of Britain where they headlined their own show.

SUTHERLAND

"But here we've been opening for different bands and when you're just a supporting act, you've got to settle for potluck," he said.

"You always know the majority of the audience is there for the headline act and we feel we're just filling in until their heroes step on stage."

Though the band lost a good deal of the initial momentum gained by their American debut Lp, "Lifeboat" distributed by Capitol three years ago, Iain says he and brother Gavin are confident their recent tour, and considerable radio airplay on FM stations, will make their next U.S. appearance more to their liking.

"We found it very heartening to know a lot of FM deejays kept our music alive by playing the 'Lifeboat' album when it was the only album available here," Iain said.

Ballet slated at Redlands

The San Diego Ballet will open the 53rd summer season at the Redlands Bowl at 8:15 p.m. July 2. The company is directed by ballerina Dame Sonia Arova and her husband, Thor Sutowski.

Miss Arova began her dance career in her native Bulgaria at the age of 5. From that time on, she has appeared on stages all over the world with most of the leading stars of ballet and has won countless honors. Both Miss Arova and Sutowski have performed with such noted persons as Erik Bruhn, Rudolf Nureyev, Jean Pierre Bonnefous, Nadia Nerina and Kirsten Simone, as well as the foremost choreographers — Balanchine, Tudor, Butler and others.

Miss Arova's title was conferred upon her by King Olaf of Norway for exceptional achievement after she had directed the National Opera of Norway for five years.

Sutowski, premier danseur and resident choreographer of the San Diego Ballet, began his career at age 13 and has been acclaimed throughout Europe. He won the Venice Theater Gold Medal and a Ford Foundation scholarship.

The program will include Act II of "Swan Lake," "Harp Concerto," "Dialogues and Images" and "Paquita."

There is no charge for admission, though a donation is accepted. Preceding the ballet, the official city Bicentennial honor guard will present the colors for the Pledge of Allegiance and the National Anthem. The honor guard is composed of boys from the YMCA Leadership Club under the direction of Rich Kennedy.

Amber is a brittle, yellowish-brown material used in making beads and other ornaments.

A piece of amber looks very much like a stone, but it is actually a fossil material formed from the clear, sticky resin that oozed from ancient pine trees millions of years ago — just as resin seeps from pine trees in forests today.

The resin was buried, and it hardened into amber after many years in the ground. It is hard enough to be carved into beads and other articles of jewelry, but it is not as hard as glass or marble.

In some pieces of amber you can see leaves, twigs and the preserved bodies of insects that were trapped in the sticky resin before it hardened.

Although the amber-producing trees grew in many parts of the world, the biggest supply of amber is found along the shores of the Baltic Sea, where it is mined from the ground.

Today when storms disturb the sea, pieces of amber may be washed up on the shore.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

The Engineer may, from time to time and without Board approval, issue addenda to the contract documents during the period of advertising for bids for the following purposes: (a) revising Prevailing Wage Scales, (b) clarifying or correcting special provisions, plans or bid proposal; provided, however, that any such addenda shall not change the original scope and intent of the project.

Purchasers of contract documents shall be notified of and furnished with copies of such addenda, either by certified mail or personal delivery, during the period of advertising.

Russians producing artificial caviar

MOSCOW (AP) — It took dozens of specialists about 10 years, but the Russians finally have come up with it artificial caviar.

The product definitely looks a lot like, tastes a lot like and smells a lot like those black little sturgeon eggs, but it really comes from curdled milk and a variety of other natural ingredients which bear no relation to the long-snouted fish.

The Soviets have been talking about this breakthrough for at least three years, but only quite recently have they felt confident enough to produce it on a regular basis and place it on grocery shelves for the Soviet consumer.

Even the product's developers do not pretend it replaces the real thing, but they are hoping this artificial variety will at least allow the wide public once again to indulge a familiar taste

The hard fact is that real caviar has become increasingly rare and expensive over the past decade for the ordinary citizen, because many of the sturgeon's traditional spawning grounds have been destroyed by encroaching industrialization.

In 1965, a Russian could buy a kilogram (2.2 pounds) of the finest Beluga caviar for 18 rubles. Today, the ordinary citizen can hardly find the delicacy, but when it does appear on shelves, it is snapped up for 45 rubles a kilo — about $60 at today's official exchange rate or nearly one-third of the average monthly wage in this country.

The new artificial brand costs about 11 rubles for the same amount, or the equivalent of $14.

Most Soviet citizens have not yet tried the man-made caviar, because production is still limited to only 150 kilograms a day from one machine. But long lines at the single store which sells it, "The Okean" on Moscow's Peace Avenue, indicated this pusedo-caviar may have a solid future.

On the other hand, the Russians are notoriously suspicious of non-natural products, and the initial enthusiasm may be mostly curiosity.

The product is made in only one small area of a giant fishpacking plant on the northern outskirts of the capital, on the banks of the Moscow River. The plant is now building an addition to house enough machines to produce two tons a day.

On a recent tour, visitors faced a machine about the size of a 2.5 ton truck, ministered by half a dozen white coated attendants.

At the far end of the rumbling apparatus was an ordinary conveyor belt, which carried a gooey mass of shiny, black little pellets. "That, one French visitor told us, is pure gold coming off that belt," said Igor Osetinsky, official of the Soviet licensing agency which hopes to reap a windfall from this product.

The process of making this food is deceptively simple, "like all things of genius," smiled Galya Kolesnikova, and engineer who was conducting the tour.

First, gelatin is added to casein — a residue of curdled milk — in a solution of distilled water, producing a gluey porridge. This is then put into a glass centrifuge containing sunflower seed oil, which congeals the casein-and-gelatin substance into little white balls. They pass through a solution to wash off the oil, and then coloring is added.

An extract of tea and iron chloride is used to obtain the black color, it was explained.

As this mass of black and tasteless pellets rolls onto the conveyor belt, it is washed in salt water. At the end of the belt, the mass falls into a receptacle where nutrients and flavors are added.

The "Caviar" gets its flavor and aroma from salmon roe and herring roe, the officials explained. Obviously sturgeon roe cannot be used to flavor the product, because that really is caviar.

Masterminds behind the man-made caviar, Drs. Sergei Rogozhin and Vladimir Tolstogouzov of Moscow's Institute of Organo-elemental Compounds, insist their product actually has some advantages over the real thing. Mainly, they say, it contains no cholestoral and is easier to digest than natural caviar.

How does it taste? A side-byside comparison with fresh caviar indicates the similarities outweigh the differences. The ersatz eggs are mushier and do not seem as salty. Because it is machine made, the color and round shape of the "eggs" are more uniform.

"After a couple of vodkas, who's going to care," shrugged one Soviet.

How large?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — How large is the crack in the Liberty Bell?

According to Philadelphia officials, it measures three-eights of an inch.

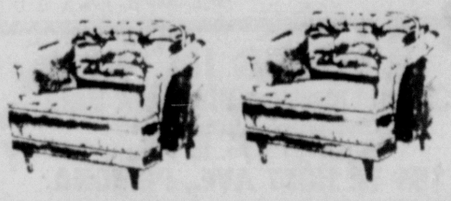

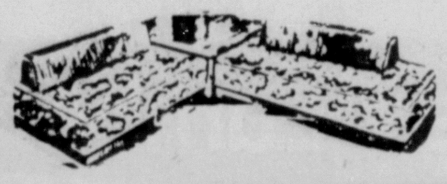

Garage helps you find car

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — There's a self-service parking garage here for 4,000 vehicles where it is impossible to lose your car.

The garage is under Crown Center, a city-within-Kansas City. If you descend to the garage after working in the office buildings or shopping in the boutiques and can't remember where you parked, all you have to do is hit a button to locate your car.

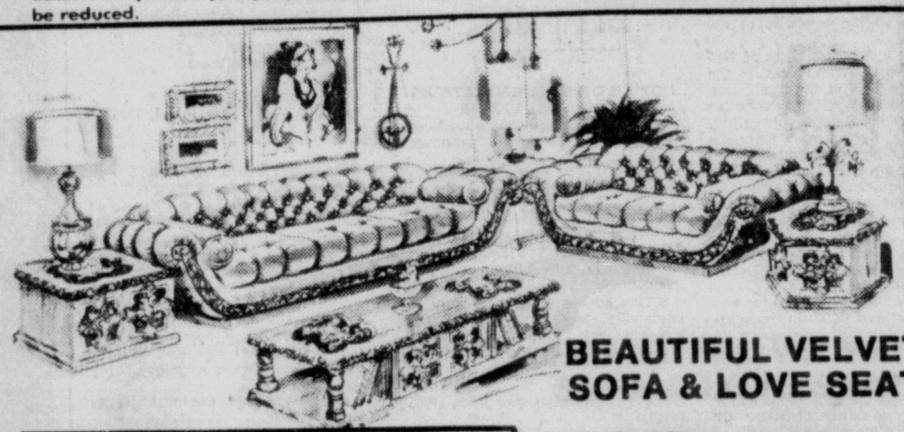

The button is one of many in the garage's intercom system that links patrons to a security office. An officer listens to the description of the car, then scans the garage with 75 closed circuit television cameras. When the car is located, the officer gives the patron walking directions to the car.

Joyce Brothers

Shoplifting no game

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I recently invested a large part of my savings in a small store because my wife and I wanted to leave the city to find a better life in the country. The past few months I've discovered that I've been losing much of my merchandise because the good people of my new community steal. Last week, I caught the 16-year-old daughter of one of the town's oldest families stealing. I've threatened to prosecute and everyone is furious and considers me a mean old man — T.L.

Dear T.L.: I think your community might consider you less "mean" if they realized that, according to reports, nearly one out of every 14 store "customers" walks off with something he hasn't paid for. As a result, stores lose an estimated $1 billion or more each year. Those who don't steal are penalized by having to pay higher prices.

Half of all shoplifters are under 20 and most adults began in their teens. It's important for this young girl's future health and happiness that she be stopped now and her parents should be cooperative and realize that they're not doing her a favor by taking her crime lightly.

Many young people steal for thrills and it becomes like a game and an easy way to gain status among their peers. Most have relatively little idea how much financial damage is involved.

I feel it's important to make young people realize the consequences of their actions. It might be a good idea to contact a school authority and ask if you could go to the students directly, explain your problem in the community and ask for their help and advice.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My mother-in-law was recently hospitalized. Doctors aren't sure yet whether she will need an operation, but the way she's reacting you'd think she was on her death bed. When we visit she acts completely helpless and thinks of countless little things for us to do for her. When we get up to leave, she gets weepy. — B.R.

Dear B.R.: The fact that your mother-in-law's medical future is not yet definite by no means implies that she should be unconcerned and worry-free. In many people's minds, hospitalization in itself is an indication of a serious problem, even though the assumption may not be warranted.

A certain amount of anxiety or nervousness is only natural when a person is ill, for the future is no longer quite certain. The fact that your mother-in-law's case is even more indefinite probably serves to increase her anxiety because it give her imagination free rein. She is uncertain of the nature of her ailment and its relative seriousness and may piece together a medical opinion from snatches of conversation, imagining the worst.

Removed from her normal routine and the familiar roles in family and work life, she may feel a strong sense of loss. Life goes on outside without her while time seems to have come to a standstill in her predictable sickbed routine. Irrationally, she may imagine her isolation is a kind of rejection and consequently needs the reassurance that she is still wanted and needed.

Some patients find the dependent sick role comfortable and useful. It is possible that your mother-in-law is capitalizing on her condition to some extent in order to extract the attention and concern she feels is her due. If this is the case, it is only natural for you to feel resentment.

On the other hand, try to remember that she is probably experiencing a personal crisis. She is apprehensive and frightened about possible surgery and is reaching out for reassurance, although her approach may be self-defeating.

Instead of being critical, try to give her the emotional support she needs, encouraging her to talk out her worries.

Why pay more for specialized bras?

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Before Mrs. Z. left the mastectomy shop on New York's upper East Side, she said, "You can quote me on this. I feel we've been exploited by manufacturers. Your bra is $8. Why is mine $25?"

Her complaint is echoed by many mastectomees who object to paying high prices for surgical bras which differ primarily from others because of a built-in pocket which accommodates the substitute breast or prosthesis.

"But a mastectomy patient doesn't need a special brassiere," says Virginia B. Sinon, spokeswoman for the American Cancer Society. "Why does an A-line dress that says 'maternity' cost so much more than an A-line dress for anybody else? Because its specialized.

"A prosthesis is something else. That is a pretty specialized thing. But with bras, a woman can adapt her own by putting in a pocket herself."

Miss Sinon doesn't minimize the initial shock and gravity of breast surgery, but she does point out that "some women have a psychological block and feel they have to have something special. They cater to these psychological whims."

The climate, therefore, is ripe for exploitation and the occasional manufacturer does more than charge more for his product.

For example, the Jodee Bra Company in its hunger for business at times boast endorsement by the American Cancer Society.

"Thank goodness that isn't a trend," says Miss Sinon. "Our problems have been with those individuals who have just come into the field.

"We've asked Jodee to insure that their representatives discontinue the practice of stateing that we have approved the bras. We're not an endorsing organization. We make available a list of manufacturers, their products and prices to our individual units across the country. They localize it so that women know what's available in their immediate area. We also supply a list of bathing suits on the market that women might find suitable."

Both lists carry the following message: "This suggested list is not an endorsement of any specific item, and it is not intended as a complete list of all suppliers."

This aside, the Society is concerned with stressing the point that the woman who has had breast surgery differs only slightly from every other woman. And that difference can be overcome.

Through its Reach to Recovery program which offers assistance to mastectomy patients, the Society provides a free manual which is full of how-to information.

To convert your own bra, it says, sew in that pocket and add a bra extender or two from the five and dime to accommodate temporary tenderness. Sew a vertical seam on the front of the bra to keep the prosthesis from sliding towards the middle. And, if the strap hurts your shoulder, use an inexpensive shoulder pad.

How to exercise, how to choose a prosthesis (shop around and don't fall for the "most expensive is best" routine; each woman's needs are different), how to wear a plunging neckline: it's all there in the manual, in addition to tips on adapting bathing suits and making "fill-ins" for shoulder and arm cavities created by the surgery.

Reception scheduled in Covina

The reception to be sponsored by Woman's Relief Corps Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic in honor Mrs. Virginia Spoonemore of San Dimas, will be held at the Covina Bowl in the Garden Room on June 26.

Mrs. Spoonemore, a member of Vicksburg Corps, WRC, has been named department president for California and Nevada.

Reservations for the 1:30 p.m. event are to be made with Mrs. Ruth Johnson by June 22.

NOTICE INVITING BIDS FOR CASH CONTRACT NO. 4570 BREA CANYON CUT-OFF ROAD (Diamond Bar Area)

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Road Commissioner of the County of Los Angeles, in Room 180, 1540 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033, until 9:30 a.m. on June 29, 1976; and then will be publicly opened and read in Room 193 at the above address for the construction of pavement and other incidental and appurtenant work estimated to cost less than $22,000, and all in accordance with the provisions of the Plans, Specifications, Notices and Instructions to Bidders therefor which are on file and open for inspection at the offices of the Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department.

The contractor to whom this contract is awarded will be required, before execution of the contract by the County Board of Supervisors, to file with the County Board of Supervisors surety bonds as follows:

A "Faithful Performance Bond" amounting to 100% of the total contract price is required for all contracts.

A "Payment Bond" (labor and material) amounting to 50% of the total contract price is required for all contracts which have a total contract price in excess of $10,000.

The Engineer may, from time to time, and without Board approval, issue addenda to the contract documents during the period of advertising for bids, for the following purposes: (a) revising Prevailing Wage Scales, (b) clarifying or correcting special provisions, plans or bid proposal; provided however that any such addenda shall not change the original scope and intent of the project.

Purchasers of contract documents shall be notified of, and furnished with copies of, such addenda, either by certified mail or personal delivery, during the period of advertising.

Proposal must be submitted on forms prepared and furnished for the purpose, which may be obtained at the Information Desk in the lobby of the Los Angeles County Road Department Administration Building, 1540 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033 at which office bidders may also purchase copies of the Plans and Specifications for the contemplated work for the price of $7.08 plus Sales Tax per set, not refundable. A mail address and a phone number must be left at the aforementioned office which the prospective bidder agrees is sufficient to reach him.

Each submitted proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a surety bond, payable to the County of Los Angeles in an amount equivalent to at least ten (10) percent of the total aggregate bid price of such proposal, as a guaranty that the bidder, if his proposal be accepted, will enter into and execute the awarded contract, and furnish the required bonds in connection therewith, in accordance with the terms of the aforementioned Specifications.

In the event that a surety bond is submitted in lieu of a check, it shall be subject to the condition that the surety thereon be approved by the County Auditor and County Counsel. Surety bond shall be signed by a guaranty or surety company listed in the latest issue of the U. S. Treasury Circular 570.

The Board of Supervisors reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and to wiave technical errors and discrepancies, if to do so seems to best serve the interests of the County.

The County hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively insure that in any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement, minority business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation and will not be discriminated against on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex or national origin in consideration for an award.

Pursuant to the provisions of Sections 1770 to 1777, inclusive, of the Labor Code of the State of California, the Board of Supervisors has ascertained the general prevailing rate of per diem wages for each craft or type of workman needed to execute the proposed contract, and it will be required that not less than said rates be paid to all such workmen employed or engaged on the work. Complete wage rate schedules are on file at the offices of the Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department and are included in the contract specifications available at the Road Department.

Furthermore, minimum wage rates for this project as predetermined by the Secretary of Labor (Federal) are set forth in the special provisions.

If there is a difference in the minimum wage rates predetermined by the Secretary of Labor, the prevailing wage rates determined by the Department of Transportation or by the Board of Supervisors for similar classifications of labor, the Contractor and his subcontractors shall pay not less than the highest wage rate.

Pursuant to Section 1770 of the Labor Code, the Department has ascertained the general prevailing rate of wages in the county in which the work is to be done, to be as listed in the State of California, Department of Transportation publication entitled Equipment Rental and General Prevailing Wage Rates, dated June, 1976.

The rate of compensation for any classification not listed in the schedule, but which may be required to execute the proposed contract, shall be commensurate and in accord with the specified rates for similar or comparable classifications or for those performing similar or comparable duties.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS: Bidders must satisfy themselves by personal examination of location of the proposed work and by such other means as they may prefer as to the actual conditions and requirements of the work, and shall not at any time after submission of the bid dispute, complain, or assert that there was any misunderstanding in regard to the nature or amount of work to be done.
